4,230 AIRSHIPS FOR ARMED FORCES

O'Mahoney Seeks to Extend Contracts to September to Give Control Agency Opportunity to Function.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 31.—(AP)—A presidential message, recommending that all civilian aviation be placed under the control of the interstate commerce commission, was followed today by senate approval of a measure to extend existing air mail laws to September 1.

"The air mail situation is an integral part of the entire aviation problem," Senator O'Mahoney, democrat, Wyoming, author of the bill, said, "and my measure simply gives us a breathing spell to consider the message and the report. Otherwise existing contracts would have to be revised on March 1."

Along with Mr. Roosevelt's observations on aviation were the bulky report of his special committee, headed by Clark Howell Sr., which has been studying air problems for months. The president disagreed directly with one of the commission's recommendations—that for the creation of a temporary air commerce commission.

"Orderly government," said the president, "calls for the administration of executive functions by those administrative departments or agencies which have functioned satisfactorily in the past, and, on the other hand, calls for the vesting of judicial functions in agencies already accustomed to such powers. It is this principle that should be followed in all of the various aspects of transportation legislation."

Recommendations. The aviation commission, which was created last year after the air mail contracts were cancelled by Postmaster-General Farley recommended: That the United States meet transoceanic competition with government-constructed but privately operated dirigibles.

Construction of a naval training airship to replace the 10-year-old Los Angeles.

Adoption of air expansion programs of the army and navy with 2,320 planes for the army and 1,910 for the navy.

That all airlines operating December 1, 1934, be considered to have a presumptive right to a certificate of convenience and necessity.

Assumption by the federal government of the cost of installing and part of the cost of maintaining lights and other aids to navigation at airports approved by the new air commerce commission.

Immediate action to insure proper provision of a suitable airport for the

Crash of Falling Wall Gives Macon a Scare

MACON, Ga., Jan. 31.—(AP)—When downtown merchants telephoned Macon police last night that their buildings had been shaken by a blast, the officers, remembering several safes had been blown open here recently, lost no time in getting to the scene.

They found that the "explosion" was caused by the fact that workmen, in demolishing an old building, had pulled down a heavy brick wall.

MOSCOW REJECTS JAPAN'S PROPOSAL TO QUIT FRONTIER

MOSCOW, Jan. 31.—(AP)—Japan was accused of flagrant violation of the Portsmouth treaty, providing for demilitarization of Russo-Japanese frontiers, in a militant address today by Vyacheslav Molotov, Russia's virtual premier.

Molotov rejected a Japanese suggestion that the Siberia-Manchukuo border be demilitarized, asserting Tokyo disregarded the Portsmouth treaty of 1905, which provided "no military operations should be carried on between Korea and Siberia and on Sakhalin island."

Heers' mention of Japan's activities in Manchuria, the Russian official newspaper Pravda warned "We are ready at any moment to answer with triple blows the incursions of war."

The 2,500 delegates to the congress had cheered yesterday an announcement that the soviet army in the last four years had increased from 600,000 to 1,400,000 men.

The speaker, whose address closed discussion of his four-day report on bolshevist progress since the last all-union congress in 1931, said he had with Koki Hirota, Japanese foreign minister, who recently proposed demilitarization of the Manchoukuo-Siberia frontier, a non-aggression agreement would not be sufficient to secure good relations between Japan and Russia.

Molotov explained to the delegates that the Portsmouth treaty obligates both signatories to withdraw their armies from Manchuria and provided that the Manchurian railways should be used only for peaceful purposes.

Although the soviet union was entitled to keep 25,000 guards in Manchuria, he said, all forces were withdrawn shortly after the Bolshevik revolution, thus more than fulfilling treaty obligations.

U. S. S. R. ARMS ADVANCES
KNOWN BY JAP OFFICE

TOKYO, Jan. 31.—(AP)—Japan already knew Soviet Russia has tremendously increased her army in the past four years, high officials of the war office said today in commenting on an announcement at Moscow that the red army now numbers 940,000 men.

Asserting the war office has been aware of soviet military activity for many years, the spokesman pointed to the statement of General Senjuro Hayashi, minister of war, yesterday, that the Japanese army is equipped to cope with any eventualities.

That statement, they said, adequately

BISHOP AINSWORTH TERMS MAYOR KEY STATE ENEMY NO. 1

Macon Methodist Churchman Turns Fire Upon All Public Officials Backing Beer Sale.

Assailing Mayor James L. Key as "Public Enemy No. 1 in Georgia," Bishop W. N. Ainsworth last night attacked officials of Atlanta and other cities who have licensed sale of beer in defiance of state laws.

Informed of the bishop's remarks, Mayor Key later made only this comment:

"I don't care to get into a controversy with a minister."

"Those mayors and concealing aldermen who have promoted the sale of beer in the face of the plain ABC's of Georgia law have made an incalculable contribution to lawlessness in Georgia," Bishop Ainsworth, of the Methodist Episcopal Church, South, told a prohibition rally here.

He and several other prohibition advocates spoke at a meeting sponsored by the Consolidated Forces for Prohibition in Georgia.

G. F. Garrison, Atlanta insurance man and past president of the Baptist Young People's Union of Atlanta, President J. R. McCain, of Agnes Scott College, and Rev. John Wood, of Rome, were other speakers at the meeting.

Mayors Attacked. Bishop Ainsworth said that "much more disastrous than the sale of beer" in numerous Georgia cities, "pernicious as that will inevitably become, is the example of official lawlessness that the mayors of Atlanta, Macon, Augusta, Savannah and many smaller cities have given the state in their sponsoring of its illegal license."

Bishop Ainsworth said, had "led the way" in such "lawlessness, when Mayor Key says, as he is quoted in the public prints as saying, that 'there is nothing here and here and here that can stop me in this purpose' (the setting up of a liquor store) regardless of the council or the legislature, his speech is the language of insurrection."

The very dignity of his position makes him Public Enemy No. 1 in Georgia," said the bishop, amid applause.

Teachers Favor Restraint. Dr. McCain discussed prohibition from the standpoint of the educator, and said that teachers "of our country have been consistently in favor of

KENTUCKY TROOPS AT CRIME CENTER

Military Rule Established in Clay County; Soldiers Recover 14 Autos.

MANCHESTER, Ky., Jan. 31.—(AP)—Kentucky National Guardsmen moved quickly and secretly tonight in carrying out an order to "clean up" Clay county, whose bloody history led a federal investigator to call it "the worst criminal stronghold in the United States."

Descending upon the town in the early morning hours, in a surprise move by Governor Ruby Laffoon to break up an alleged automobile theft ring and end other lawlessness, the troops shortly after the Bolshevik revolution, thus more than fulfilling treaty obligations.

Later Circuit Judge V. E. Begley abruptly adjourned court to give way to military control.

He declared the county was practically under martial law and that in such cases civil courts have no jurisdiction.

Meanwhile, Brigadier General Ellery W. Carter, in command, telephoned Adjutant General Henry H. Denhardt, in Frankfort, and was advised that 50 to 100 more troops would be sent in tonight.

14 Cars Recovered. "I thought that a good idea so they could go ahead and clean the whole place up," General Carter explained later. The troops spent the day in small squads searching the county and brought in 14 cars, listed as stolen, but made no arrests. General Carter said more men were needed to expedite this work.

Judge Begley's action followed refusal of General Carter, in command of 100 national guardsmen and 35 state police, to permit Sheriff T. C. McDaniel to arrest Clyde Jones, a state policeman, on two indictments. The judge said that when troops refuse to turn over a man to the civil courts that, in effect, amounts to martial law. He went to General Carter, got a military pass, required for any one leaving the county, and left for his home at London, in adjacent Laurel county.

Jones was indicted here by the January grand jury on charges of house breaking and grand larceny after he had reported he had spotted approximately 40 stolen automobiles. He did not return to Manchester until the troops came in today. Sergeant D.

TREASURY PLANS 'BABY BOND' ISSUE

President To Purchase First Certificate as Drive Opens March 1.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 31.—(AP)—Almost on the eve of the expected supreme court decision on gold—involving millions in its own pre-valuation bonds—the treasury today set for March 1 the opening of a new financing move by means of a "baby bond" issue.

President Roosevelt was chosen to give impetus to the drive through the purchase of bond "A-1."

Getting off to this innovation in post-war financing, departmental officials today also continued their study of means of averting what government counsel has told the supreme court would be an economic crisis if the court should hold against the government in the gold cases.

Expected Monday. A decision is generally expected, but not certain, on Monday. The court's ruling will determine whether congress had constitutional authority to issue the gold payment to spend of some $100,000,000,000 in public and private bonds.

An adverse decision would make them worth $100,000,000,000 in the present deflated currency.

The "baby bonds" will be issued in denominations running from $25 to $100,000 and, under present plans, to be sold principally through the post-office.

'Der Kingfish' to Come Here, Would Put on 'Real Show'

"Der Kingfish" wants to "put on a show" for the Georgia legislature and Atlanta, invited by the state house of representatives to give the largest crowd to them, Huey Long passed through the city en route to New Orleans yesterday afternoon. He said he'd be back the middle of next week to address the house.

He suggested the city auditorium be secured and that Governor Talmadge and the legislature "hire an orchestra, except that all the people are going one way and the Standard Oil crowd another."

This was in answer to an earlier charge by Ernest Bourgeois, leader of the "revolt and civil war," Long's charge that the Standard Oil Company of Louisiana is behind his opposition has been denied.

Long suggested hiring the city auditorium for his Atlanta speech after inquiring where the largest crowd could be assembled. Told the auditorium was correct.

ASSEMBLY PASSES TALMADGE BILLS WITHOUT DISSENT

Only One of Three Remaining Gubernatorial Measures Expected to Provide Battle.

The general assembly practically completed enactment of Governor Talmadge's program Thursday. Only three of the measures sponsored by the chief executive have not been adopted, and only one of these, a constitutional amendment which would limit the number of days in an extraordinary session of the legislature, appeared to be in danger of defeat.

Speeding their activities at the direction of Speaker E. D. Rivers and President Charles D. Redwine, the house and senate Thursday gave approval to a number of measures, all of which were joined with those already adopted and are on the governor's desk awaiting his signature.

Governor Talmadge, absent on a visit to his Telfair county farm, is expected here Saturday to sign the bills.

Measures Approved. The measures on which enactment was completed Thursday follows:

The permanent $3 auto license tag. The bill to divert $2,000,000 in accrued highway funds to pay past-due salaries of school teachers and past-due Confederate pensions.

The 1933, 1934 and 1935 $3 tag orders.

The constitutional amendment providing a four-year term for governor and other constitutional officers. This bill will go back to the senate today for concurrence in a minor amendment.

The constitutional amendment making the lieutenant governor the president of the senate.

The lengthening of the term of the commission of agriculture from two to four years.

The lengthening of the term of the superintendent of schools from two to four years.

The annual meeting of the commission of commerce and labor from two to four years.

The house also took up the governor's proposal to give the chief executive authority to limit the length of a special session in his call for that session. An effort to amend the projected constitutional amendment, to

WHITE HOUSE AD ON BIDS CHARGED

Self-Styled Ex-Associate of F. D. R. Said to Have Won Navy Contracts.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 31.—(UP)—An investigator of the senate munitions committee testified today that Arthur P. Homer, naval architect who he said once was "in the lobster business with Franklin D. Roosevelt," helped the Bath (Maine) Iron Works obtain an order for construction in 1933.

The witness was F. W. LaRouche, who said Homer solicited funds for shipbuilding firms in 1932 for the demobilization campaign.

LaRouche said that the Bath company's bids on destroyer construction were "informally rejected."

The memorandum told how Homer conferred with Rear Admiral Christian J. F. People, referred to by President Roosevelt's closest friend in the navy department, and suggested that the Bath company induce several persons to telegraph the White House protesting exclusion of the company from bidding.

The Bath bids, it was said, were not in proper form.

The memorandum continued that People concurred in the suggestion. The telegrams were sent—10 of them, written originally in Homer's office.

At 6:30 p. m., the memorandum said, "Mr. Homer called Mr. Martin McIntyre (President Roosevelt's secretary) and asked that these telegrams be segregated from the mass of telegrams and delivered to the president at breakfast. This was done."

The memorandum told of other conferences between Homer and other naval officers which resulted in recommendations for the company to be awarded a contract to build two destroyers.

LaRouche said Homer told him at a recent conference that the memorandum was correct.

"In fact," he said, "Homer seemed quite proud of it."

Homer was present at the hearing but not permitted to testify. His physician said he had high blood pressure and his life would be jeopardized if he was subjected to such excitement.

Poison Liquor Deaths Laid to 2 in New York

GLOVERSVILLE, N. Y., Jan. 31.—(AP)—A woman and a four-year-old child were arraigned on charges of illegally selling liquor late today, and authorities prepared to charge two Little Falls men with manslaughter in the death of 31 persons from poisoned alcohol.

The five persons arraigned all pleaded not guilty and were held in $5,000 bail. They were Mrs. Mary Derriero and her son, Thomas Derriero; Crescenzo Mendetta, John Coney and Ernest Tragalia.

AUTOMOBILE CODE EXTENDED TO JULY OVER AFL PROTEST

President Signs Pact Amended to Spread Employment and Maintain Labor Agreement.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 31.—(AP)—President Roosevelt tonight extended the automobile code through June 15 with amendments designed to spread employment.

The amendment called for an agreement among the auto makers to hold the auto shows and to bring out new models in the fall instead of in January and for the manufacturers to pay time and a half for overtime of more than 48 hours a week.

An additional amendment provided that the manufacturer should continue to abide by the labor relations agreement which ended the strike threat last spring.

This amendment dashed the hopes of the American Federation of Labor that Mr. Roosevelt would throw out the Wolman auto labor board "for proportional representation."

President Roosevelt's statement accompanying the amendment follows:

"Renewal of the automobile manufacturing code brings with it two important and important advances which are designed substantially to improve employment conditions in this major industry. No backward steps are taken."

"When the code was renewed last November, I expressed the desire that something be done to regularize employment and to improve the conditions of employment in the automobile plants be increased as much as possible by steadier and more continuous work throughout the year."

The manufacturers had indicated to me their serious purpose to bring about a greater regularization and I was informed at that time that they were already engaged in studies to accomplish it."

"I also instituted an investigation by the research and planning division of N.R.A. and the bureau of labor statistics to develop the facts which might enable me to suggest recommendations looking toward the stability of automobile employment and other improvements in labor conditions."

This investigation and accompanying studies have been prosecuted diligently. In line with recommendations already made and with conclusions

$3 Tag Sale Extended Month by Governor

Governor Talmadge Thursday signed an executive order extending until February 28 the time for buying 1934 automobile license tags without payment of the penalty of $1.00.

"A good many people have not had an opportunity to come to the capital to get their tags and I know the large crowds at the tag bureau have caused some to turn around and leave without being waited on," the governor said in issuing the order.

"I am extending the time on the tags for the month of February but I think all should get their tags by March 1. They never will be any cheaper."

The tags are selling at $3 for all cars, trucks and buses.

Young Worker Says Hauptmann Not One of Two Men He Saw in Car With Ladder on Afternoon of Kidnaping.

WILENTZ ATTACKS WITNESS' RECORDS

Carlstrom, Under Severe Cross - Questioning, Holds to Story He Saw German in Bakery.

FLEMINGTON, N. J., Jan. 31.—(AP)—The story of a mysterious station wagon that carried two men and a ladder toward the scene of Baby Lindbergh's kidnap-murder and the hotly disputed testimony of a handwriting witness were linked today with Bruno Richard Hauptmann's alibi defense.

Just before the celebrated murder trial reached the end of its twenty-second dramatic day, the carpenter's counsel won the right to put the first handwriting expert on the witness stand to attack the state's identification of Hauptmann as the ransom writer.

After a half hour, prosecutors had fought to keep the expert from the stand.

Two new alibi witnesses, a Hungarian batik artist and a Harlem restaurateur, bolstered the accused man's story of what he did on the night the golden-haired baby was stolen and slain.

Hauptmann's tale of that wild night of March, 1932, was this:

That he was in the Bronx, 60 miles from the lonely Howell home, Colonel and Mrs. Charles A. Lindbergh; that he called for his wife, the baker's dog for a walk and the went home with Mrs. Hauptmann.

The state, led by David and fiery Attorney-General Frank T. W. Wilentz, ripped into each story savagely.

Much of Wilentz's fire was directed at the credibility and record of L. Harding, young laborer in a tattered lumberjack, who swore that two men in a station wagon, loaded with a ladder, asked him directions to the Lindbergh estate on the afternoon of the kidnaping.

Neither of the men was Hauptmann and neither appeared to be St. Louis, to contradict eight expert state witnesses who swore that Hauptmann wrote every one of the 14 ransom notes which a mysterious figure, a $50,000 ransom.

Despite the lengthy fight the prosecution waged on Trendley's qualifications, he was qualified by Supreme Court Justice Thomas W. Trenchard.

Tomorrow he will make his comparisons of the ransom notes and the Hauptmann handwriting.

Meanwhile, a mysterious attack on a possible state witness, Mrs. Fannette Rivkin, young Bronx beauty, captured some of the spotlight from the Hauptmann country courthouse.

Mrs. Rivkin, bound and gagged, was found in her burning flat. She

TREASURER INVITES GA. CONTRIBUTIONS FOR R. E. LEE HOME

Miss Helen Knox, treasurer of the Robert E. Lee Memorial Foundation, expressing appreciation of contributions by Georgia citizens to the foundation, invites any Georgian to place his or her name on the roll of founders by making a contribution of $5,000. As yet, no Georgian has made a contribution of the necessary amount to become one of the founders.

Stratford Hall, the plantation home of General Lee in Westmoreland county, Virginia, was purchased in May, 1928, establishing an indebtedness of $25,000. Contributions will go toward paying off the indebtedness and restoring the grounds and house to their 18th century appearance.

Besides being the home of General Lee, Stratford hall was the home of two signers of the Declaration of Independence and three Revolutionary War heroes. Checks may be made payable to the Robert E. Lee Memorial Foundation, and may be sent to Mrs. Walter D. Lamar, 238 Georgia avenue, Macon, Ga., or to Mrs. Joseph R. Lamar, 41 Muscogee road, Atlanta.

Child Labor Clause Approved by Utah

WASHINGTON, Jan. 31.—(AP)—The child labor amendment to the federal constitution tonight had the endorsement of 22 states.

To become an amendment, it still needed ratification by 14 more states. Action today by the Utah house of representatives, giving concurrence to approval by the senate, made that state the 22d to approve the proposal. Another legislative body, the state affairs committee of the Kansas house, however, recommended against ratification.

The amendment has been before the 48 legislatures for nine years, during which all but a mere handful have acted. In almost two-score of the states, the amendment, at some stage, has been either voted down or postponed. A number of these states, however, reconsidered the action at a later date and ratified.

With Utah's approval today, the list of ratifying states stood tonight as follows:

Arkansas, California, Arizona, Wisconsin, Montana, Colorado, Oregon, Washington, North Dakota, Ohio, Michigan, New Hampshire, New Jersey, Illinois, Oklahoma, Iowa, West Virginia, Minnesota, Maine, Pennsylvania, Wyoming, Utah.

DAUGHERTY LEAVES FLORIDA HOSPITAL
SARASOTA, Fla., Jan. 31.—(UP)—Former Attorney-General Harry M.

Tripped by His Dog, Boy of Five Killed
CHICAGO, Jan. 31.—(AP)—Five-year-old Roy Kestney set off with his dog and his playmates for the neighborhood candy store today.

En route, the dog became entangled in his tiny master's legs and tripped him. He fell to the sidewalk.

"He's playing dead," his little companions cried.

Buy Roy wasn't feigning. He was dead—probably from a skull fracture.

Daugherty today left the Joseph Halton hospital, where two weeks ago he underwent an operation. He will return to an inn in Sarasota, where he has spent the winter for a number of years.

FATE OF RUTH DEAN IN HANDS OF COURT
JACKSON, Miss., Jan. 31.—(AP)—The fate of Dr. Sarah Ruth Dean, convicted poison slayer of her alleged lover, Dr. Preston Kennedy, rested Wednesday in the hands of the Mississippi supreme court.

For six hours today the court listened while lawyers battled over every inch of the ground covered by the voluminous record—the transcript of one of the state's most noted lawsuits.

This record will be reviewed by the court before an opinion is handed down and observers do not expect a decision before February 25, at the earliest.

Meisner Identified By Labatt on Stand
LONDON, Ont., Jan. 31.—(AP)—John S. Labatt identified David Meisner, in the courtroom where the latter is on trial, as one of three men who kidnapped him last August.

The wealthy brewery president, on the witness stand, was asked by Chief Crown Prosecutor J. C. M. German, who one of the trio was who stopped him on a lonely road between Sarnia and London.

Labatt answered, "the accused," "Where is the accused?" asked the prosecutor.

"In the prisoner's box," Labatt replied.

BANK OF FRANCE LAUDS ROOSEVELT

F. D. R.'s Dollar Manipulation Beneficial to World, Says Annual Report.

PARIS, Jan. 31.—(AP)—The Bank of France annual report today said the dollar manipulation of President Roosevelt, by halting price deflation "beneficially affected the economic situation of the whole world."

France's vast horde of gold was powerless to restore prosperity, the statement said, but merely reflected the world's confidence in the solidity of the franc.

The bank report disparaged "artificial interference with economic laws" as regarding recovery.

Faith in the gold bloc was reaffirmed.

"After four years of a crisis without precedent," the report said, "the franc today is more solidly bulwarked than ever." It deplored "systematic pessimism," but stated France's business slump is very marked, but "nevertheless, it is no worse than that of the majority of other countries."

The gold stock was shown to be $2,122,998,690 francs (about $733,737,955,000) on December 26, 1934, an increase of five billion francs during the year. The bank's earnings were 138,825,112 francs during 1934 as compared with $2,156,522 for 1933, but 89,000,000 francs were charged off for the quarter billion francs in frozen assets.

Without mentioning any country by name the report said: "The normal play of economic laws whose salutary action would gradually dissipate the depression is constantly balked by artificial interference whose disappointing results become clearer every day."

The report recalled the sudden withdrawal of three billion francs in gold during the January and February riots of last year and another flurry when the cabinet of Gaston Doumergue fell in November.

Hoarding was reported still to be great because of "public unrest."

DR. NEWTON TO HONOR LEGISLATORS SUNDAY

Governor Eugene Talmadge, President Charles D. Redwine, of the senate; Speaker E. D. Rivers, of the house, members of the general assembly, and all statehouse officers will be special guests of the Druid Hills Baptist church Sunday morning at the 11 o'clock service. The special service in honor of the general assembly is held during each regular session of the legislature.

Governor Talmadge, President Redwine, Speaker Rivers and Chief Justice Richard B. Russell Sr., will occupy seats on the platform and each will address brief greetings to the congregation and the radio audience. The service will be broadcast over station WGST.

Dr. Louis D. Newton, pastor, will preach from the text "The Testimony of Jesus Christ Is the Spirit of Prophecy." Special music has been arranged and the public is invited to attend the service. A section of seats will be reserved for members of the general assembly and their friends until 11 o'clock.

VIENNA RITES TODAY FOR MRS. H. J. MORGAN

Mrs. Henry J. Morgan, Atlanta church worker, died Thursday morning while visiting her daughter, Mrs. T. C. MacDonald, in Orlando, Fla. She was 70 years of age and resided at 688 Linwood avenue, N. E.

Mrs. Morgan had lived in Atlanta since 1921 and had been active in the affairs of the Druid Hills Baptist church. She was a member of the United Daughters of the Confederacy and of the Order of the Eastern Star.

The funeral will be held at 4 o'clock this afternoon in Vienna, Ga., where she formerly resided. Dr. Louis D. Newton, pastor of the Druid Hills Baptist church, will officiate and burial will be in the Vienna cemetery.

She is survived by her husband, five other daughters, Mrs. Walter Richardson, Mrs. George D. Burtchell, Mrs. Edna F. Morgan and Miss Laura Morgan, of Atlanta, and Mrs. T. A. Adkins, of Vienna; a son, C. W. Morgan, of Tampa; two brothers, Eugene Brown, of Macon, and Williams Brown, of Cordele; and a sister, Mrs. John Adkins, of Cordele.

TWO FIRED AS RESULT OF FERA JOB FATALITY

Two foremen employed on the sewer project on Club drive, in which a negro was killed and three other relief laborers were injured Tuesday in a cave-in, have been discharged, Miss Gay B. Sheppard, Georgia FERA administrator, announced Thursday following an investigation of the accident.

"The accident occurred," according to Keller F. Melton, director of the safety division of the Georgia administration, who conducted the investigation, "as a result of the failure of two work foremen to carry out implicit instructions from the state of Georgia concerning safety measures especially prepared to protect workmen on this particular type of project."

THREE MEALS A DAY

KITCHEN TESTED RECIPES

by Sally Saver

Sauerkraut has become one of the accepted staple foods of the American people. In fact, the increase in consumption has been so rapid that the United States is threatening Germany's record as the leading kraut consumer of the world. The demand is still for the old standbys of spare ribs and kraut or pork shoulder and kraut, but there is also a growing demand for kraut in the form of a side dish and in salads.

Here are three recipes for the lighter kraut dishes:

Spanish Onions With Sauerkraut. Peel six onions. Scoop out from the top a portion of the center. Parboil them for five minutes and turn them upside down to drain. Fill them with the following mixture:

One cup sauerkraut, 1-2 cup soft bread crumbs, 1-2 cup left-over fish, meat or chicken (finely minced), 2 tablespoons melted butter. The onion taken from the center (chopped fine) 1-4 teaspoon salt, 1-8 teaspoon paprika.

Fill the onions leaving full with the above mixture and sprinkle the tops with crumbs. Place them in a pan with an inch of water; cover and let cook in an oven for an hour, or until tender, but not so long as to lose shape. Take off the cover and last five minutes so they will brown very slightly.

Sauerkraut Olive Relish In Green Peppers. Two cups sauerkraut, 1 package lemon Jell-O in one cup boiling water, 1 cup finely chopped celery, 12 olives stuffed with pimentos (sliced in rings), 1-8 teaspoon salt, 6 green peppers, lettuce, French or mayonnaise dressing. Dissolve a package of lemon Jell-O in one cup boiling water. When cool add sauerkraut, lemon juice, celery, olives and salt. As it begins to thicken, pour into green peppers from which seeds and partitions have been removed. The green peppers serve as individual molds. When chilled, slice in thin rings and serve on thin slices of toast with a dab of thick mayonnaise dressing on top of each ring. Serve as first course at a luncheon dinner.

Mayonnaise Dressing for Sauerkraut Salads. Due to the fact that vinegar must not be used with sauerkraut, all the salad dressings are made with lemon juice. The value of the lactic ferment in sauerkraut is spoiled if vinegar is used.

If you prefer to use your own salad dressing recipe, just substitute lemon juice for vinegar when preparing them for use with sauerkraut. However, the following recipe is suggested: One egg, 1-2 teaspoon dry mustard, 1-2 teaspoon salt, 1 tablespoon lemon juice, 2 cups salad oil, olive, corn or cottonseed.

Place the egg in a bowl, put in the dry ingredients and add the lemon juice. Beat these together a few seconds and add a small amount of salad oil. Beat until dressing begins to thicken. Then add the oil in larger amounts until the dressing is of the desired stiffness. This is a quick and easily made mayonnaise.

Rice may be used for any course at any meal, either in the fall, winter, spring or summer.

Rice Cookery (1). One cup rice, 2 quarts boiling water, 3 teaspoons salt; Wash the rice thoroughly in several waters, until all the loose starch is removed. Drain. Have the boiling water ready in a deep saucepan, add the salt, slowly drop in the rice, and allow it to boil for about 12 or 15 minutes, or until a grain when pressed between the thumb and finger is entirely soft.

In order to prevent the rice from sticking to the pan, lift, if necessary, from time to time with a fork, but do not stir it. When sufficiently cooked, turn the rice into a colander or sieve. A little hot water may be run through the rice to wash off extra starch. After the water has drained off, cover with a cloth and set over a pan of hot water on the back of the stove or in the oven; or turn the rice into a shallow pan, and place it in a warm oven for a short time. Treated in this way, the grains swell and are kept separate.

Rice Cookery (2). One cup rice, 1-2 cups water, 1 teaspoon salt; Wash the rice thoroughly until all the loose starch is removed. Drain. Place the rice, water and salt in a covered, heavy kettle over a moderate fire. When the water boils vigorously, reduce the fire as low as possible. On some electric burners, the current may be entirely turned off. On a wood or coal stove, set the kettle back off the direct heat. When a gas stove is used, an asbestos mat may be used under the pot to prevent burning. A bit of lard is often added to reduce the tendency of the water to boil over. At the end of about 40 minutes, all the water should be absorbed. Let the rice fluff and dry out 10 minutes. Turn from the pot. Many people are especially fond of the known crust or "au gratin" which is formed on the mound of rice cooked by this method.

Reheated Rice. Rice is one of the few foods which is easily reheated and which does not change in flavor when it is reheated. Left-over rice may be added to boiling salted water, cooked for 5 minutes, then drained and allowed to dry out and fluff, or left-over rice may be reheated in the oven by adding a little water to the pan, covering and heating until the grains are thoroughly hot.

Tasty Sauces. One cup milk (or meat broth, tomato juice, or rice water); 2 tablespoons white flour (or browned flour, or rice flour); 2 tablespoons butter (or meat drippings, or cooking fat); seasonings.

Method: Melt fat in a frying pan or in the top part of a double boiler, remove from heat and stir flour in to make a smooth paste. Add one-third of the hot liquid and stir until the mixture is smooth. Add the remainder of the liquid and salt, and cook until smooth and thick. The process takes about 10 to 15 minutes over direct heat, and about 25 to 30 minutes in a double boiler.

For variety add to the sauce one of these:

One-fourth cup grated cheese, 1-2 cup diced meat, 1-2 cup diced cooked fowl, 1-2 cup diced cooked fish, 1-2 cup diced cooked vegetables, 1-2 cup chopped egg, 1-4 cup broken nut meats, 1-4 cup peanut butter, 1-2 cup browned, chopped onion, celery, or green peppers.

Service for rice and sauce: The rice may be served in a bowl, as a border, in a mound, in patties, in croquets or as individual molds with the sauce; or the rice and sauce may be blended and the combination heated in the oven or on top of the stove.

WILLIAM J. ADAMS, 89, DIES AT VETS' HOME

Hero of Confederate Army Was Decorated With Cross of Honor.

William J. Adams, 89, Confederate hero and former Cobb county school teacher, died Thursday morning at the Confederate Soldiers' Home. He had been in failing health since the convention of the Confederate veterans here last fall.

Mr. Adams was decorated with the Cross of Honor for his valorous services during the War Between the States. He served with Company B, first regiment of the South Carolina heavy artillery, and participated in most of the battles along the coast between 1862 and 1864.

The Georgia veteran was taken prisoner by the northern forces at Fayetteville, N. C., in 1864, and was held until April, 1865, when he was released at Camp Chase, Ohio, at the close of the war.

Mr. Adams taught school in Cobb county, of which he was a native, for many years after he returned to Georgia in 1865. He was widely known and liked, and took an ardent interest in political and civic affairs in his county.

He was a supporter of Governor Eugene Talmadge, and last year went back to his former home in Cobb county to vote for his friend "Gene," although his health then was not good.

He was loved and admired by all at the Confederate Soldiers' Home, where he had resided since 1926.

His funeral will be held at 11 o'clock this morning at the graveside in the Confederate section of the National cemetery at Marietta. The J. Austin Dillon Company will be in charge.

Mr. Adams is survived by two daughters, Mrs. Charles Zinn and Mrs. J. M. Gibson, and two sons, J. R. and William Adams.

Georgia College Body Meets Here Today

Representatives of 18 Georgia Georgia colleges and universities will assemble in Atlanta today for the opening session of the nineteenth annual meeting of the Association of Georgia Colleges, to be held at the Piedmont hotel through Saturday.

Among the important subjects which it is expected will be discussed are the advisability of organizing a junior college state athletic association; the FERA and the junior college and new survey courses.

John J. Coss, Moore collegiate professor of philosophy, Columbia University, will speak on "The General Problem of Survey Courses on the Collegiate Level" at the informal dinner at the Piedmont hotel at 7 o'clock tonight, at which time the meeting convenes.

EVANS' AERIAL SIGN STIRS CITY'S INTEREST

Strange sights have been seen in the sky over Atlanta since early Wednesday night and scores of persons have telephoned The Constitution nightly to say a blimp or some strange aircraft has just flown over their homes.

The blimp, or strange craft, as it was variously described by those who first saw it, has been identified as the high-powered airplane piloted by S. W. Garrigus, noted stunt flyer and only one-armed special commercial licensed United States pilot.

Carrying a generating system producing 15,000 volts of alternating current, for the light display, the plane also carries a 40-foot specially-made electric sign, advertising the Willis 77 automobile, as the special representative of the Evans Motor Company. Garrigus will continue his flights over Atlanta for four or five days, it was announced.

Mr. Adams was decorated with the Cross of Honor for his valorous services during the War Between the States. He served with Company B, first regiment of the South Carolina heavy artillery, and participated in most of the battles along the coast between 1862 and 1864.

The Georgia veteran was taken prisoner by the northern forces at Fayetteville, N. C., in 1864, and was held until April, 1865, when he was released at Camp Chase, Ohio, at the close of the war.

Mr. Adams taught school in Cobb county, of which he was a native, for many years after he returned to Georgia in 1865. He was widely known and liked, and took an ardent interest in political and civic affairs in his county.

He was a supporter of Governor Eugene Talmadge, and last year went back to his former home in Cobb county to vote for his friend "Gene," although his health then was not good.

He was loved and admired by all at the Confederate Soldiers' Home, where he had resided since 1926.

His funeral will be held at 11 o'clock this morning at the graveside in the Confederate section of the National cemetery at Marietta. The J. Austin Dillon Company will be in charge.

Mr. Adams is survived by two daughters, Mrs. Charles Zinn and Mrs. J. M. Gibson, and two sons, J. R. and William Adams.

It's the TOP!

We are trying to say that our Tomato Ketchup is the sauce of sauces. Think of the Truly Great—Rembrandt, Beethoven, Babe Ruth, Chaplin, Shakespeare, Heinz Tomato Ketchup! That's what we mean. And this is no mere brag of its maker; it's the Verdict of the Voters, the People's Choice. All Heinz does is rear special tomato plants from specially pedigreed seeds, and pick their luscious ripe fruits, and sort, wash, scald, sieve and simmer them and blend in pure sugar and rare sprightly spices brought specially by Heinz scouts from the distant Orient. That is all. But enough!—for Heinz Ketchup is the top condiment of all—the largest selling Ketchup in the world!

My Cookery News Notes

By RUTH CHAMBERS

Editor's Note: The writer is Ruth Chambers, staff member of the National Live Stock and Meat Board, recognized authority on cookery of all kinds, and especially meat cookery, and the planning of meals around the meat course. Experimental cookery has developed a good deal of new information about cooking meat, which is contrary to old ideas. This series of articles will give our readers this new information in helpful form, and will also give a series of excellent recipes and suggestions for serving the meat course of the meal.

"STEM" DIET INSURES WELL PLANNED MEALS.

No job requires more intelligence on the part of the housewife than that of feeding her family. She must know how to select the raw materials, prepare and cook them so they will be tasty and attractive, then serve them satisfactorily. It is just as important, perhaps more, that she know how to plan meals to include foods which will meet the needs for energy, development and good nutrition for every member of her family.

Meal planning is both an art and a science. It is a science when the bodily needs, of the various members of the family are considered in the selection of the food; an art when foods are selected which combine flavors, colors and textures in ways that are pleasing to the palate as well as to the eye. The successful housewife aims for both and succeeds when the various food combinations included in the day's menu provide a balance of the necessary food principles.

Formerly it was thought necessary to balance each meal as a unit in itself. Recently, nutritionists have concluded that it is simpler and just as satisfactory to balance the three meals of the day as considered as a unit and the food balanced by the day instead of the meal.

Meal planning may be much simplified if the housewife will keep in mind the various foods which make up the basic diet. This diet is sometimes termed a "stem" diet for it may be sent this way and that; additions may be made on one side or the other and yet it is always the foundation for the normal diet.

The "stem" diet for each day should include one or two servings of meat; one to three glasses of milk; one or two eggs; two servings of vegetables other than potatoes (preferably one cooked and one raw); two servings of fruit (one cooked and one orange or tomato juice); three tablespoons butter; high in starch, fat, and sugar should be added to make up the individual energy requirement.

This method of meal planning may be applied in this way:

For breakfast the family might have:

Orange Juice
Poached Eggs on Toast
Coffee

For luncheon:

Broiled beef patties
Buttered Asparagus
Chocolate Pudding
Bread Butter

Dinner would consist of:

Stuffed Breast of Veal
Baked Potatoes
Pineapple and Banana Salad
Gingerbread with Whipped Cream

Reverence

If some members of the family are interested in losing weight, they should stick rather closely to the minimum diet and omit the bread and butter with the lunch and the baked potato with the dinner. Their dessert for dinner might better be omitted, too, for the fruit salad will serve nicely as a combination salad and dessert.

The daily requirement of milk need not be taken as a beverage. In this menu one dessert made with milk was introduced.

Here is another menu which is planned on the same basic diet but sounds quite different.

Breakfast:

Stewed Prunes
Cottage Cheese and Jelly Sandwiches
Baked Apples

Luncheon:

Vegetable Soup
Cottage Cheese and Jelly Sandwiches
Baked Apples

Dinner:

Pot Roast of Beef
Boiled Rice with Gravy
Julienne Carrots
Jellied Salad made with Tomato Juice and Chopped Vegetables
Baked Custard

Police, Firemen Rescue Boy From Quarry Niche

Firemen and policemen, chiseling for more than an hour Thursday morning in the solid granite, freed Mack Kennedy, 13, of 21 Barnett street, N. E., whose foot had become wedged in a crevice in an abandoned quarry near Collier road and Twenty-eighth street.

The boy, who had been camping near the abandoned quarry with other members of his Boy Scout troop, slipped and fell, his foot becoming wedged in the crevice. HERTY SAYS SOUTH RICH IN CHEMICALS

ern farmers would not only do their bit toward supporting the industry but would help themselves.

The south, he said, can supply its farms with potash, phosphate and nitrogen.

"No question," the scientist said, "has ever been raised as to the quality or the price of products made right here in the south."

Elaborating on the importance of the American nitrogen industry, Dr. Herty said "it has a double significance, for it constitutes the most substantial of all arms for self defense."

"To insure a domestic nitrate industry, our federal government has spent millions of dollars for scientific research on the subject, and our chemical industries have invested millions of dollars right here in the south."

Speaking of his work in developing products from southern pine, Dr. Herty said:

"We have now made newsprint of greater strength as to burst, tear and tensile than any other commercial newsprint manufactured in the world."

Urging that the south spend its money on its own chemical products instead of buying from outside markets, the speaker said, "I have in mind particularly the attracting of capital to the south for the development of a great white paper industry."

He told of the successful manufacture of rayon from bleached sulphite pulp from young southern pine.

"Slash pine," he said, "is a cash crop and for that reason will constitute a new fiscal program for our farmers who heretofore have relied solely on cotton, a seasonal crop. Here are millions of acres of abandoned farm land on which pines will grow with greatest ease and with no special care in cultivation."

Dr. Herty spoke at the annual meeting of the association which is in progress here. His address was broadcast over the Dixie network of the Columbia Broadcasting system.

Dr. Clarence Poe, of Raleigh, N. C., editor of the Progressive Farmer, presided at the meeting.

Members of the Southern Association of Agricultural Workers Thursday heard one government crop expert describe the trend of production in foreign countries as vital to export markets for American cotton, and an official of the AAA said there was no imminent danger of foreign crop expansion.

Speaking on the federal government's campaign to lift the standing of the farmer, Nils A. Olsen, chief of the bureau of agricultural economics, United States department of agriculture, said the "persistent upward trend in supplies of foreign cottons . . . is indicative of strong competition we must expect to face."

The agricultural workers also heard Cully A. Cobb, chief of the section of the agricultural adjustment administration, outline a three-point program featuring the government's plan.

These, he said, were: Higher prices for cotton and increased agricultural purchasing power; permanent control of crops, with the government assuming its responsibility in seeking a better south-wide condition of living; and restoration of foreign markets.

Olsen said a "serious obstacle to the sale of American cotton abroad may develop in the form of special compensation trade agreements between importing countries that find themselves short of exchange and other cotton producing countries."

"Large consuming countries laboring under financial and economic difficulties must have a larger outlet for their products if they are to acquire the purchasing power with which to buy our cotton," Olsen added.

Olsen said "no doubt a general leveling of barriers would prove most helpful in promoting the restoration of normal conditions but the immediate situation may be such as to make desirable special arrangements with importing countries that are handicapped by their financial situation. In any event the future of our cotton exports will be influenced in no small degree by the success attained in years to come in promoting the international movement of commodities."

The future developments in the domestic cotton situation "will have a vital bearing on the place of American cotton in foreign markets," he added, as well as on the domestic price of cotton, the income of growers and the general welfare of the south.

Olsen said many questions need to be answered before the outlook for cotton can be fairly appraised. He listed some of the questions as:

Pressing Questions.

What will the trend in business recovery and the consumption of cotton?

What effect will the shift in the manufacture of the world's cotton goods from Europe to the orient have upon the consumption of American cotton?

Will cotton production in foreign countries continue to expand and, if so, how rapidly?

What are the economic influences

Herty at Agricultural Dinner

Dr. Charles H. Herty (right), of Savannah, developer of Georgia pine pulp and rayon manufacturing processes, and Dr. Clarence Poe, of Raleigh, N. C., editor of the Progressive Farmer, are shown here at a dinner in honor of the former by the Association of Southern Agricultural Workers, held Thursday night at the Atlanta Biltmore.

making for larger or smaller cotton production in this country?

How will cotton production programs affect cotton prices and farm incomes?

Will rayon and other substitute fibers create severe competition?

What are the prospects for a reduction or removal of barriers to international trade and what effect will their removal have on American cotton?

Several investigations, Olsen said, are now underway by the bureau of agricultural economics, which "I hope will go far toward supplying the answers."

Need Better Cotton.

Dr. W. H. Barre, pathologist in charge of cotton and other fiber crops and diseases, addressing the Thursday afternoon meeting of the joint sessions on cotton at the Biltmore hotel told the delegates why the consumption of American cotton in world markets has decreased materially in the last year.

"To hold our foreign cotton trade and satisfy our own textile demands we must not only produce better cotton than other countries but we must produce it at a price that will compete in world markets. We have not been doing that," Dr. Barre said.

"Cotton plant research in this country has lagged far behind the types of fiber research we should be doing. However, cotton spinners are becoming quality conscious and better fibre and longer staple will be more and more in demand."

The resolutions committee of the association met in closed session at 4:30 o'clock Thursday afternoon in the ballroom on the mezzanine floor of the Henry Grady hotel. Its report will be made to the general assembly of the association Friday morning.

The executive committee also met in closed session at 4:30 o'clock Thursday afternoon. The findings of this committee will be brought before the Friday morning meeting of the association by the president, J. Phil Campbell, who is also president of the convention.

Herty Speaks Tonight.

Dr. Charles H. Herty, of Savannah, who has developed rayon and paper from pine pulp, will be the guest of honor and principal speaker at a dinner at 7 o'clock tonight at the Biltmore hotel. He will speak on "An Urgent Message for the South."

Over 600 reservations have been made for this dinner, which will prove one of the highlights of the convention.

"The screw worm situation in the southeastern states, in Florida and in Alabama" will be the subject of three papers to be read before the general assembly of the convention at its meeting Friday morning at the Henry Grady hotel.

Reports of committees, election of officers and miscellaneous business will complete the business. The general session is scheduled to adjourn Friday afternoon.

RFC CHIEF READY TO FINANCE PULP.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 31.—(AP)—Jones, chief of the Reconstruction Finance Corporation, said today the corporation was prepared on reasonable assurance of repayment, to arrange loans for the development of pulp and paper mills in the south.

Jones looked with favor on the suggestion that local interests in various areas of the southern pine belt put up half the capital and the RFC loan the remainder necessary to finance mill construction.

"If they will do that," said the RFC chief, "we can go along with them."

The statement to the Associated Press followed final enactment by the senate and house of a measure extending the life of the corporation and liberalizing its functions to provide loans for new industry.

Representative Braswell Deen, of Alma, Ga., author of the amendment, said that, in his judgment, it was the most far-reaching and important step taken in this congress to aid the south in reviving business. He led the fight before the house banking and currency committee when his amendment was being considered.

Senator Russell, of Georgia, said: "Our people are awake to the tremendous possibilities of expanding this industry and increasing the wealth which we possess in our pine trees. I hope that it will be possible for us to secure new industries by obtaining funds from the Reconstruction Finance Corporation to supplement local capital."

Jones was described by Deen as "sympathetic with the possibilities of the new paper pulp industry in the south."

The representative successfully fought off efforts of house members from certain northern pulp areas to eliminate the new industry loans provisions of the bill.

Movements were reported already under way in Savannah, Waycross and Brunswick, Ga., to build mills.

LIFE OF RFC SAVED ON DAY OF DEATH

Charter Extended Two Years and Lending Powers are Widened.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 31.—(AP)—Congress put on an old-fashioned melodrama today, acting just in the nick of time to save the Reconstruction Finance Corporation from death in Father Time's buzz-saw at midnight.

Both houses approved a conference committee report which ironed out differences between them, and the measure was rushed to the White House where President Roosevelt signed it and gave President Hoover's depression orphan another two years of life—until February 1, 1937.

The RFC was created by Mr. Hoover to bolster banks, insurance companies and railroads. Later it was expanded to take over public works and relief loans. When Mr. Roosevelt took office and created the public works administration, some of the RFC's functions were taken away, and it seemed destined to be an unwanted stepchild.

The measure extending its life, however, has somewhat broadened its powers in making loans.

Most important change was a section authorizing the RFC "to make loans to finance companies and other credit institutions, now or hereafter established, engaged in financing or preparing to finance, the sale of electrical, plumbing or air-conditioning appliances or equipment."

The revised measure authorized the RFC to assist in the reorganization of real estate properties but reorganizations must be approved by the securities and exchange commission before loans may be obtained.

Another of the liberalizing provisions authorizes the RFC to lend up to $10,000,000 for development of gold, silver and tin properties. Individual loans were limited to a maximum of $20,000.

The decrease in obligations showed a percentage of minus 13.4 while there was a minus 1.2 decrease in the number of families in December under their during the month of November. This is considered a fairly good record by the administrator for the reason that reports from all the states showed an increase of 5.8 per cent in the relief rolls from November to December. Expenditures in the same month increased 4.2 per cent.

Fewer Families Given FERA Relief in Georgia

WASHINGTON, Jan. 31.—Obligations incurred by Georgia families receiving emergency relief under the general relief program dropped from $2,331,831 in November to $2,239,839 in December, Federal Emergency Relief Administrator Harry L. Hopkins announced here today. The December figures were taken from telegrams and unexamined reports and are subject to revision, but according to Mr. Hopkins, they are fairly reliable.

In November 87,135 families in the state were receiving relief under the general relief program while in De-

HAWKS.

Yesterday afternoon a gentleman from Locust Grove came into the office with a hawk he had killed. He wanted to know what it was and if they should be killed.

To make the long story short it was a marsh hawk. This hawk is always recognizable in flight by the white rump patch. That should be the flag of peace. It should be the absolute limit of safety for him. He is a beneficial bird and deserves to be treated as such.

His food consists almost entirely of mammals. It is too much to say that he never takes a bird; after all, he is a flesh eater and flesh is flesh whether it be clothed with feathers or with fur. In some places there may be a high percentage of birds in his diet; here, with small mammals as abundant as they need to be, he will take very few if any birds. In any event, it is my belief that the marsh hawk is capable of doing vastly more good than harm and that his depredations among the birds are more than offset by his control of injurious rodents.

The marsh hawks nest on the ground in a well-built nest. It is really a masterpiece for the tribe, since so many of them are content with a rough sort of nest that might, from all appearances, fall to bits in the next wind.

Authorities say that there may be from two to nine eggs. I have never seen but four, on the other hand I have had very little experience with the marsh hawks. I like the pluck of the little hawks. When an intruder approaches the nest they throw themselves on their backs and open their beaks; they have their nice sharp little talons ready to fight anything that approaches too close. I once moved a set of quadruplet hawklings from the nest and kept them in captivity to watch the changes of plumage. They became so bedraggled and dirty that my best efforts to keep them clean were futile. With proper equipment the job would have been easy. I released them and watched them disappear over the crest of the hill on Grapevine Point, across Fishtail bay on Douglas lake. I like them better in the air than in the cage.

No, the marsh hawk is not detrimental to any game birds. It is

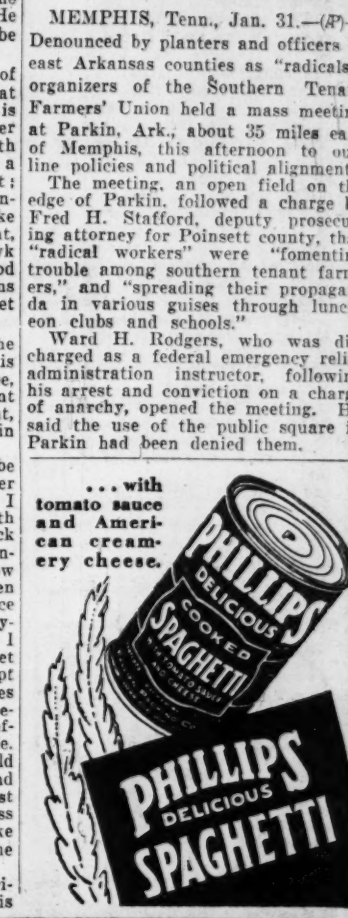

Sharecroppers Meet To Outline Policies

MEMPHIS, Tenn., Jan. 31.—(AP)—Denounced by planters and officers of east Arkansas counties as "radicals," organizers of the Southern Tenant Farmers' Union held a mass meeting at Parkin, Ark., about 35 miles east of Memphis, this afternoon to outline policies and political alignments.

The meeting, an open field on the edge of Parkin, followed a charge by Fred H. Stafford, deputy prosecuting attorney for Polk county, that "radical workers" were "fomenting trouble among southern tenant farmers," and "spreading their propaganda in various guises through lunch-rooms and schools."

Ward H. Rodgers, who was discharged as a federal emergency relief administration instructor, following his arrest and conviction on a charge of anarchy, opened the meeting. He said the use of the public square in Parkin had been denied them.

USE OF MORE MARBLE IS URGED UPON U. S.

Representative Vinson and Other Southerners Appeal to Morgenthau.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 31.—(AP)—A plea for more liberal use of marble in federal construction was placed before Secretary Morgenthau today by members of congress from marble-producing states.

The treasury head expressed deep sympathy for the distressed condition in the industry, and at his request the congressional group appointed a committee to go further into the subject.

Senator Bachman, democrat, Tennessee, described as "On its deathbed, with its only hope the revival of use by the government."

Figures were presented by Representative Vinson, democrat, Georgia, to show that of 193 projects now being handled by the treasury only 14 specified any use of marble and the value in these was only $50,000.

Representative Hobbs, democrat, Alabama, presented a graphic picture of conditions in the marble industry, saying 20,000 men were threatened with unemployment.

Morgenthau explained he had considered it his duty to the government to construct the most substantial buildings at the least cost, but added that if he was wrong in this position and congress thought otherwise, he would be glad to conform to its wishes.

Local Department Stores Report Increases in Sales

Federal Reserve Statistics for December Reveal Advancing March of Business.

The volume of retail trade in December in the sixth federal reserve district increased by more than the usual seasonal amount and was the highest level for any month in four years, it was revealed Thursday in the monthly review of the Federal Reserve bank of Atlanta.

Net sales by Atlanta department stores reporting were 15.5 per cent greater in December than those of December, 1933, and 63.9 per cent above those of November, 1934.

Sixty reporting department stores in the district revealed that total sales during the year 1934 were 25.5 per cent greater than in 1933, 21 per cent greater than in 1932, and 8 per cent greater than in 1931.

Factory employment, according to the report, increased between the middle of November and the middle of December, "contrary to seasonal tendency, and there was a considerable growth in factory pay rolls."

Bank debits to individual accounts, the report pointed out, increased 14.8 per cent over November and were 15.1 per cent greater this December than in December, 1933.

Building reports, issued at 20 reporting cities declined 16 per cent from November to December, they were 4.9 per cent greater than in December, 1933, and for the year were 63 per cent greater than in 1933, and 20.1 per cent greater than those for 1932.

Value of crops produced in the six states of the district, according to the report, increased 31.3 per cent in 1934 over 1933, and were 90.1 per cent greater than in 1932, not including rental or benefit payments. Crop values for the past three years are estimated as follows: 1934, $4,764,507,000; 1933, $4,100,712,000; 1932, $2,504,000,000.

Ordinary life insurance sales in the district in December exceeded monthly sales for the past three years. They increased 32.7 per cent over November and 13.3 over the year 1933.

December cotton consumption was 19 per cent greater than in December of 1933 over the country as a whole, but declined 13.3 per cent from November, 1934.

Heartening news to residents of the coastal plains was that receipts from turpentine and rosin for the year were ahead of those of 1933.

Loans Decline.
Member banks reported, according to the report, that loans were slightly less than a year ago, but investment holdings were 18.9 millions greater, and demand deposits, although 9.6 millions less on January 9 than four weeks earlier, were 42.4 millions greater than a year ago.

Ex-Army Fighter Signs To Fight J. Barleycorn

Jerry Rooney, an old campaigner, was headed for St. Petersburg, Fla., Thursday night for what he considers will be a final knockout bout with John Barleycorn.

Rooney, who is 61, has completed his final "hitch" in the United States army, and was said to have been a former welterweight champion in the army, but, he told Recorder A. W. Callaway Thursday morning, found his match in John Barleycorn, who won decisions over him many times.

He asked Recorder Callaway to be lenient with him on the charge of drunkenness as he was en route to the Old Soldiers' Home at St. Petersburg, where he would have plenty of time to win that victory over his arch enemy.

Recorder Callaway dismissed the case and wished him a decisive victory.

greater than a year ago, and stocks, except of crude oil, were also larger.

Production of electric power increased in Georgia from 15,641,000 kilowatt hours in November, 1933, to 91,428,000 kilowatt hours in November, 1934.

While the receipts of turpentine at Savannah dropped during December against a year ago, the receipts of rosin there were greater than in November and also in December, 1933.

Painful Piles
Go Quick—No Cutting—No Salves
If you think an operation is always the only way to escape the misery of torturing piles, it's because you haven't heard of Hem-Roid, the harmless internal medicine discovered by a western physician.

After years of study Dr. J. S. Leonhardt was convinced that the cause of blood in the lower bowel—the hemorrhoidal veins filled with stagnant blood—and that the right and safe way to get freedom from Pile agony was to remove the cause with an internal medicine. Immediately the doctor set to work to find the remedy. He succeeded and called his prescription HEM-ROID.

Pile sufferers everywhere are benefiting by Dr. Leonhardt's discovery, so why doubt or delay longer when Jacobs drug stores and all druggists say, "No matter what kind of Piles you have, one bottle of HEM-ROID tablets will show you the safe clean way to get rid of your pile misery or money back."—(adv.)

HONEA TESTIFIES AGAINST DANIEL

Alleged Accomplice in Lord Slaying Denies Part in Holdup-Killing.

Sam Daniel, alleged accomplice of Marvin Honea in the holdup murder of David Lord, went on trial Thursday for his life and heard Honea, condemned to die in the electric chair, relate from the witness stand the story of the filling station holdup.

Slouched in his chair, with one knee cocked up on the counsel table, Daniel appeared decidedly at ease, and joined loudly in laughter that greeted frequent humorous turns in the testimony.

In a calm, pleasing voice, and speaking perfect English, Honea told the story as related in his written confession, in which he said that Daniel, the night before Lord was slain, suggested to him and S. W. Sisk, the alleged third member of the holdup party, that they rob M. M. Weaver, Center Hill dairyman, and went with them the morning of the slaying, lying on the back seat of the car while Honea and Sisk went in and staged the holdup.

Knowledge of Neighborhood. Honea denied under cross-examination that he was familiar with the Center Hill section and resided in the negative when asked if he had an uncle living near the Rakestraw filling station where Lord was killed. H. E. Rakestraw, who was robbed of $500 when Lord was killed, repeated his testimony of the Honea trial, naming Sisk and Honea as the two men who held him up.

Most of the morning session was taken up by a long grilling by Arthur Powell, defense attorney, who failed to shake the story of Mrs. Gertrude Bagwell, held in jail as a material witness, that she heard Daniel suggest the Monroe holdup. The defense, in placing Mrs. S. E. Weaver, landlady of the rooming house in which the state contends the Monroe plot was hatched, on the stand, succeeded in eliciting a contradiction of Mrs. Bagwell's testimony. Mrs. Weaver said she met Daniel on the morning house stairs the morning Lord was slain, and that he brought in a package of meat for the Bagwell breakfast. Mrs. Bagwell had sworn herself to the fact for her testimony that Daniel said he could not leave the house, as he did not want to be seen.

Retaliation Hinted. Defense counsel sought to show that Honea implicated Daniel to get even for the action of Daniel's brother, Elbert, in tipping county police off that the Bagwells were on their way to Chattanooga soon after Christmas. County Policeman W. A. Vinson, called as a defense witness, admitted it was on Elbert Daniel's information that the police were led to the street of the Bagwells in Cartersville, where they recovered the pistol which Bagwell testified he loaned Honea the night before the killing.

Mrs. Weaver, on cross-examination by Assistant Solicitor-General J. Walter McCraw, said that on the morning Lord was shot she mentioned the holdup to Daniel, telling him she had heard it on the radio and that the handi got $500. She said Daniel replied "they didn't get that much."

At one point in Honea's testimony Judge G. H. Howard ruled out the question as improper. The long battle of wits between Powell and Mrs. Bagwell kept the courtroom in a titter of laughter for two hours. At one point Powell asked the witness why she had asked Daniel if he knew anything about the robbery. Mrs. Bagwell replied, "I read detective stories, and run down my own clues."

Powell said he expects today to produce witnesses to prove that Honea knew the Center Hill neighborhood, which was denied by Honea, who said he could never have gotten to Rakestraw's place without the direction of Daniel.

Testimony for the defense will be resumed this morning at 9:30 o'clock.

The minimum number of days specified in the governor's call to 30, was defeated. The vote on it was 86 to 86, and Speaker Rivers broke the tie by voting against the amendment.

With such a number favoring the amendment, it was evident the administration will not be able to get the two-thirds majority necessary to bring about submission of the matter to the people.

However, it was pointed out by both friends and opponents of the proposed amendment it makes little difference to Governor Talmadge, as he has shown in the past he will never call a special session of the legislature, even though he is the sponsor of the amendment. The senate last week approved the submission of the amendment by a big vote.

Bills Ready for Governor. The measures approved Thursday were prepared for the governor's signature along with three matters approved Wednesday—the bill to reorganize the veterinary division of the state department of agriculture and the bill to reorganize the state veterinarian, from office; the resolution ratifying the governor's suspension of the old public service commission and making that suspension permanent, and the constitutional amendment creating the office of lieutenant governor. It took two separate amendments on this office, one to create the office and a second to make him or her president of the senate.

The senate and the house finished in a dead heat in their race to be the first to complete action on one of the governor's bills. When the governor's office was opened Thursday morning, Secretary John W. Hammond, of the senate, was there with the bill to reorganize the veterinary office, and Clerk Andrew J. Kingery also was on hand with the public service commission over resolution. But the governor wasn't there and the signing of all of the matters was deferred until Saturday.

The senate acted speedily on the matters before it Thursday, the three measures on which final enactment was completed in that body being put through without debate.

Vote on Measures. The bill ratifying the tag price of the last three years got a vote of 44 to 0, and the permanent $3 tag, which was already approved in a senate bill, got a vote of 42 to 0. The diversion bill was passed, 44 to 0.

Passage of the diversion bill was the first step of the governor's program to get the state out of debt during this, his second term. The deficit is now $4,045,000 and will be reduced to $2,045,000 when the funds diverted under the bill are disbursed. The state deficit then will be lower than it has been in several decades, and will be only $2,000,000 as compared with a deficit of $8,000,000 which the governor found when he took office in January, 1933.

Funds for Teachers. Dr. M. D. Collins, state superintendent of schools, announced Thursday that his office is ready to send the money diverted to the various counties for payment to the teachers and bus drivers.

"If the governor signs the bill Saturday the money will be in the hands of the teachers by the middle of next week," Dr. Collins said. "The schools of Georgia, thanks to Governor Talmadge and the legislature, not to mention the highway board which saved the money, will be in better shape than they have been in my lifetime."

The bill, which provides for the service officer, said similar preparations for disbursement of approximately $500,000 in back pensions, which will go to the Confederate veterans and their widows, was being made by his office.

Special Session Issue. While the senate was completing its work on the Talmadge program and turning its attention to other matters, the house put through the bills and constitutional amendments favored by the chief executive until it reached the stumbling block in the special session amendment.

The bills lengthening the term of office of the commissioner of agriculture and the superintendent of schools will become laws when signed by the governor as Commissioner of Agriculture Tom Under, Commissioner of Commerce and Labor Hal M. Stanley and Superintendent Collins.

The officers affected by the constitutional amendments are Secretary of State John B. Wilson, Comptroller General William B. Harrison, State Treasurer George B. Hamilton and Attorney-General M. J. Yeomans.

Under the terms of the amendment as it affects the governor, it will not increase the length of the term of office.

With Georgia's Lawmakers...

The house gave Speaker E. D. Rivers a big hand Thursday when in a debate on the floor, he was mentioned as "the next governor of Georgia."

Representative Sabados, of Dougherty county, arguing against the proposed constitutional amendment giving the governor authority to limit the length of an extra session, his call for the session, said he "didn't believe the present governor of the state or the next governor of the state, the present speaker of the house, ever would be affected by the amendment," as he didn't believe they would want to call an extra session. The house broke into loud applause and it was with difficulty that the speaker quieted the demonstration being made for himself.

Senator Millican's bill to make Fulton county a separate senatorial district was up in the senate for passage Thursday, but the upper branch of the general assembly adjourned before a vote was taken on it.

Senator Millican spoke in behalf of the bill and Senate President Charles D. Redwine, of Fayetteville, whose county is affected by it, along with Senator Evans, of Thomson, spoke against the measure.

The senate will vote on it today.

Representative Culpepper, of Fayette county, the chairman of the house committee on general appropriations, Thursday again was forced to cancel the first meeting of his committee. The cancellation was made necessary by a lengthy afternoon session in the house.

The committee chairman said only the state department of health has asked for a revision of its appropriations. The health department was appropriated $125,000 last year and this year, but is asking that the appropriation be hiked for 1935 and 1937.

Robert E. Maddox, Atlanta banker, and only non-medical member of the board of health, was at the capitol Thursday to argue for the increased appropriation, and said he would appear whenever the Culpepper committee met.

Georgia spends less for public health than any state in the south," Mr. Maddox said. "We have a very ambitious and worthwhile program mapped out if the legislature can find us the needed money. We feel we have much merit in our appeal and I am confident the assembly will give us the money if it can find it."

WITNESSES BACK Hauptmann Alibi

Defense Handwriting Expert Qualified Over State's Protests.

told a hysterical story of a wife who was a nurse and who tried to kill her by fire.

Places Date Easily.

Reputedly she had offered to testify concerning passage of ransom bills, but Attorney-General Wilentz declined to do so.

It was learned tonight from an official source, however, that Mrs. Elvira Hauptmann will not be called as a witness to tell of Mrs. Anna Hauptmann's visit to her beauty shop.

Mrs. Rivkin's story was checked by investigators. The state, it was explained, believes Mrs. Hauptmann had no knowledge of any ransom money.

Louis Kiss, the bank clerk, a thin, worn child of a man, testified he was in Frederick's bakery, the Bronx, on the night of March 1, 1932, and saw Hauptmann enter with a police dog.

He remembered the date so well, he said, because he took his son to Bellevue hospital the night of March 1, 1932, and saw Hauptmann enter with a police dog.

The state, however, will produce hospital records to show the boy was taken to the hospital on February 22, 1932, and not a week before the Lindbergh kidnapping.

August Van Henke, dark and unimposing by the cross-examination of Attorney-General Wilentz, who swore he met Hauptmann in a Bronx street near the Frederick's bakery on the night of March 1 and thought the German man and not a week before the Lindbergh kidnapping.

Van Henke's testimony was attacked by Wilentz, who elicited the fact that the restaurant Van Henke operated was raided at least twice as a speakeasy, that Van Henke used three different names, and that a race track "bookie" had sometimes used the restaurant as a headquarters.

The witness testified his first heard of the kidnapping the night it happened "around 10, 11 o'clock," when he went into the street after dinner and heard people talking of the crime.

A check New York showed today the news was broadcast over the radio at 11 p. m. on March 1, and the first newspaper to carry the news, came from the presses between 10:45 and 11 p. m.

Harding was next.

Lindbergh Intent.

There was no noticeable doubt in the Lindbergh's voice as he swore to the men, the car, and the ladder, he told Edward J. Reilly, chief of defense counsel, looked "something like" the kidnaper.

Wilentz pointed out that the witness drew from Harding that he had a criminal record, had served once in a reformatory and twice in a workhouse.

Wilentz asked him to describe the ladder he saw "exactly."

Hauptmann listened with interest as today's witnesses told their stories in his behalf, then defended them.

Kiss on Stand.

Kiss came to the stand today after Elvira Hauptmann, Swedish carpenter, had withstood Wilentz's further efforts to make him change his story that he, too, saw Hauptmann in the Bronx bakery on the night of the kidnapping.

Carlstrom admitted he had taken French leave from his job as caretaker of a house in Dunellen to make a trip to New York on his birthday.

The state then produced in court Arthur Larsen, who worked with Carlstrom at the Dunellen house, and asked the witness if it was not true both he and Larsen had spent the night of the kidnapping in the house where they were employed.

Carlstrom denied it, and said he would not believe the house owner's penciled records if they showed that. He admitted, however, the Larsen week and returned to his Bronx home only for his week-end.

Larsen to Testify.

Larsen, it was indicated, would be called by the prosecution to testify that Carlstrom never left Dunellen the night of the kidnapping.

Carlstrom Takes Stand.

Carlstrom was called back to the stand shortly after the start of today's session.

Q. Now you testified yesterday you saw the defendant only once and that was on the night of March 1, 1932, in the bakery?

A. Yes.

The witness told Wilentz he fixed the time that he went to the Bronx bakery by the subway clock.

After visiting the bakery Carlstrom said he went to Brooklyn, about 1 a. m.

Q. What did you do there?

A. Carlstrom did not answer for a long time, and Wilentz asked if he understood the question.

Reilly interposed, suggesting that the witness might feel that it might incriminate him.

"Will your answer incriminate you?" Wilentz asked.

"Yes," said Carlstrom and an answer was not required.

Bruno Reading Newspaper.

Carlstrom said "as far as he could see," Hauptmann was reading a newspaper that night in the bakery.

Wilentz asked the witness to identify Arthur Larsen, with whom he boarded in the Bronx. Larsen arose from a chair near the prosecution table and Carlstrom said he remembered him.

Q. Arthur Larsen worked in Dunellen with you?

A. Yes.

Q. He stayed in that house with you?

A. No, he lived in the Bronx.

Q. But he didn't go home to the Bronx every day he worked?

A. No.

Q. He stayed in Dunellen at night?

A. Yes.

Q. Slept in the same house with you?

A. Yes.

Q. You never said a word about Larsen yesterday?

A. Because you never asked me.

Q. And you never said anything about Larsen staying there, sleeping there?

A. I occupied the house.

Reads From Records.

Wilentz began reading yesterday's record to show that Carlstrom testified he lived alone in the house in Dunellen.

Q. The truth is that you never left Dunellen on any week day night, except the week-end?

A. I never left on week-ends, I left

Woman Attacked After Offer To Testify Against Hauptmann

NEW YORK, Jan. 31.—(AP)—Unconscious, bound and gagged in her burning Bronx beauty parlor, Mrs. Hauptmann Rivkin—who had offered to testify for the state in the Hauptmann trial—was rescued today by the building superintendent.

Attorney-General Wilentz, of New Jersey, said the woman, revived by an ambulance physician, had offered to testify but he had not yet decided whether to call her.

He declined to reveal the nature of her possible testimony.

Babbling hysterically after the physician worked for a half hour to restore her to consciousness, Mrs. Rivkin would only say:

"I'll say I don't know who did it. I'm not going to tell, I swear."

But her husband, Arthur Rivkin, excitedly told police he believed he could identify the man who, entering the parlor at about 9 a. m., bound the night of March 1.

Q. Don't you remember you and Larsen both slept in that house the night of March 1?

A. No, I don't.

Wilentz asked Carlstrom if he would believe it if the house owner, Christian, showed records to prove it.

Q. Don't think so," the witness said.

Q. Mr. Christian, came out to Dunellen to take possession of the house in the night of March 1, 1932, and saw Hauptmann enter with a police dog.

A. He came out in middle of April.

Q. Did Mr. Christian take you back to New York on April 2, 1932?

A. Yes.

Wilentz had Christian's book of records, but Reilly objected to having the witness refer to it.

At one point in the questioning Christian, showed records to prove it, the man who allegedly told the state he and Carlstrom slept in the same house in Dunellen on the kidnapping night.

It was the first time his placid expression had changed.

Ends Examination.

Wilentz ended his examination of Carlstrom and Reilly asked him about his duties at the Dunellen house.

Carlstrom explained that when he ordered a meal in broken English at the bakery Hauptmann laughed.

He said he "got a good look at him."

The witness told Reilly he was "in the company of him" between 1 a. m. and 5 a. m. after he left the bakery.

Next Kiss, a bald man, was the next defense witness called. He said he was a silk painter, lived in New York, came from Hungary and has been in the United States since 1922.

Q. On March 1, 1932, were you in Frederick's restaurant in the Bronx?

A. Yes.

In broken English, Kiss told of his appearance as a defense witness.

He said he saw the trial in the paper and went out last Sunday and called Reilly's Brooklyn office. He said he was told to report Monday at the office and on Tuesday he came to the office.

He said he lost his way on his trip to the Bronx the night of March 1, 1932, and found a man who directed him.

"When I left the man I looked at my watch. It was 8:15. Saw this bakery lunch room on my way to the office and made him tell me to describe the ladder he saw 'exactly.'"

Hauptmann listened with interest as today's witnesses told their stories in his behalf, then defended them.

Kiss on Stand.

Kiss came to the stand today after Elvira Hauptmann, Swedish carpenter, had withstood Wilentz's further efforts to make him change his story that he, too, saw Hauptmann in the Bronx bakery on the night of the kidnapping.

Carlstrom admitted he had taken French leave from his job as caretaker of a house in Dunellen to make a trip to New York on his birthday.

The state then produced in court Arthur Larsen, who worked with Carlstrom at the Dunellen house, and asked the witness if it was not true both he and Larsen had spent the night of the kidnapping in the house where they were employed.

Carlstrom denied it, and said he would not believe the house owner's penciled records if they showed that. He admitted, however, the Larsen week and returned to his Bronx home only for his week-end.

Larsen to Testify.

Larsen, it was indicated, would be called by the prosecution to testify that Carlstrom never left Dunellen the night of the kidnapping.

Carlstrom Takes Stand.

Carlstrom was called back to the stand shortly after the start of today's session.

Q. Now you testified yesterday you saw the defendant only once and that was on the night of March 1, 1932, in the bakery?

A. Yes.

The witness told Wilentz he fixed the time that he went to the Bronx bakery by the subway clock.

After visiting the bakery Carlstrom said he went to Brooklyn, about 1 a. m.

Q. What did you do there?

A. Carlstrom did not answer for a long time, and Wilentz asked if he understood the question.

Reilly interposed, suggesting that the witness might feel that it might incriminate him.

"Will your answer incriminate you?" Wilentz asked.

"Yes," said Carlstrom and an answer was not required.

Bruno Reading Newspaper.

Carlstrom said "as far as he could see," Hauptmann was reading a newspaper that night in the bakery.

Wilentz asked the witness to identify Arthur Larsen, with whom he boarded in the Bronx. Larsen arose from a chair near the prosecution table and Carlstrom said he remembered him.

Q. Arthur Larsen worked in Dunellen with you?

A. Yes.

Q. He stayed in that house with you?

A. No, he lived in the Bronx.

Q. But he didn't go home to the Bronx every day he worked?

A. No.

Q. He stayed in Dunellen at night?

A. Yes.

Q. Slept in the same house with you?

A. Yes.

Q. You never said a word about Larsen yesterday?

A. Because you never asked me.

Q. And you never said anything about Larsen staying there, sleeping there?

A. I occupied the house.

Reads From Records.

Wilentz began reading yesterday's record to show that Carlstrom testified he lived alone in the house in Dunellen.

Q. The truth is that you never left Dunellen on any week day night, except the week-end?

A. I never left on week-ends, I left

A. He make a book.

Q. How many times was your place raided?

A. A couple of times.

Q. How many is that?

A. Two or three.

Q. So you were selling liquor and had a place where men were operating a racing handbook?

A. I threw them out a couple of times.

Q. How many years was Mr. Goodwin there?

A. Von Henke said he moved from his Bronx establishment to Lenox avenue.

Q. Another speakeasy?

A. You said it a speak, I call it a restaurant.

Denies Selling Liquor.

The self-described restaurateur vigorously denied he sold beer or liquor in his Lenox avenue establishment.

Q. Was it a neighborhood patronized by colored people and white people?

A. What was the second floor?

A. I don't know.

Wilentz, shouting, asked if the witness did not operate the second floor.

A. Von Henke said he was working as a waiter and staring straight at him, said:

"I did not."

Wilentz brought out that the witness had reported the dog's loss to his neighborhood police station, or at any other police station. He said he went direct to the dog pound to see if his dog had been found.

Q. How long was that before you saw the defendant with the dog?

A. About four days, I think.

Wilentz brought from the witness that he had seen the defendant in a license as "Von Henke" although his real name was Marhenke. The man said further that he applied for relief under both names.

He was not working as a waiter.

Young Laborer Takes Stand.

The next defense witness was Lou Harding, of Trenton, a young laborer in a lumberjack windbreaker which was worn through at the elbows. The shirt was also worn through and Harding's skin was visible through the tears in his jacket as he took the oath.

NEU PAYS PENALTY BY HANGING TODAY

Slayer of Tennessean Says He Will Die With Song on Lips.

NEW ORLEANS, Jan. 31.—(P)—Louis Kenneth Neu, of Savannah, Ga., handsome night club singer, adventurer and brutal murderer, said today that he would go to the gallows tomorrow with religion in his heart and a song on his lips.

Neu will be hanged shortly after noon for the murder in a hotel room here in September, 1933, of Sheffield Clark Sr., socially prominent Nashville, Tenn., businessman, whom he robbed of a few dollars and an automobile.

It was not believed that any of Neu's family was in New Orleans, but it was reported that a young woman who acted as his godmother when he was baptized several months ago as a Catholic had made arrangements for his funeral. Prison officials did not reveal her name.

Neu arose at 10 a. m. today, bathed, shaved and dressed carefully. Combing his hair, he said:

"If I could only get this strand in the right place, I'd be satisfied."

"You know," he added, "I like to have everything just right, even a hanging."

Neu said he planned to go to bed about midnight tonight.

"I guess I'll get up about 8 o'clock," he said.

"That's a couple of hours earlier than my usual rising time, but I'll be busy tomorrow—shaving, bathing extra well, singing songs to the people I've learned to love in prison."

"Then, too, I must prepare my soul for God. I can't tell you all that religion means to me."

He grasped the bars of the cell and smiled.

"Have you heard the one about the two Irish miners who were riding in the mine shaft when the elevator cable broke?" he asked. "No? Well, one of the Irishmen said:

"Say something, Mike."

"What do you want me to say?"

"Say something about the Bible."

"And the only thing Mike could remember from the Bible," said Neu, "was, 'I'm thankful for what we are about to receive.'"

He laughed heartily.

Neu made the way of the cross with the prison chaplain this morning. The chaplain and nuns have visited him frequently in the cell.

Henry Meyer, the "official" hangman, arrived at the courthouse during the day and was sworn in as a deputy sheriff. He said he had recovered from a recent illness and would be able to perform the hanging.

Huey Poses for Atlanta Camera

Senator Huey Long, of Louisiana, passed through Atlanta on the Piedmont Limited Thursday afternoon. A news photographer caught him in typical pose in his Pullman drawing room. Photo by AP.

Senator Long said he was not lengthy when he said he planned to stop in Atlanta on his return to Washington "after the hearing in Baton Rouge has been completed."

CITIZENS TO DEMONSTRATE ON ARRIVAL OF LONG

BATON ROUGE, La., Jan. 31.—(P)—Louisiana was tense tonight as Senator Huey Long sped from Washington to take charge of his revolt-torn dictatorship.

The senator is scheduled to reach New Orleans at 7:30 a. m. tomorrow. He will then dash to Baton Rouge to reopen his court hearing on charges that antagonistic political leaders and citizens had plotted to kill him.

Several hundred national guardsmen are on duty in the capital enforcing a drastic martial law order.

The Square Deal Association, organized recently to fight Long's dictatorship, was busy calling for an unarmed march by citizens on the capital and a congressional investigation.

Its leaders were scattered. Several of them fled after the militia dispersed or captured armed citizen revolutionists last Saturday.

Ernest Bourgeois, head of the Square Dealers, was in McComb, Miss., directing an appeal to President Roosevelt and congress asking that a group of nationally known men not political officers be appointed to study the Louisiana situation.

Plans Uncertain.

Senator Long said he was not certain that he would continue on to Baton Rouge and said he would determine after reaching New Orleans, where he might leave the train and go to the capital by automobile.

"It depends on what my friends say when I get to New Orleans," he said.

"I've got the kind of organization down there (Louisiana) that runs things," he said. "I'm going down there to see what wadding they have put in the guns and I'm going to shoot them," he added.

Commenting further on his plans to speak in Atlanta he said he would be glad to bring along his loud speaker equipment for overflow crowds.

There was an indication from his conversation that the special hearing

AT ATLANTA'S THEATERS

May Robson at Rialto In "Mills of The Gods"

"Mills of the Gods," new Columbia production with May Robson as the star and with a splendid supporting cast headed by Fay Wray and Victor Jory, opens a week's engagement at the Rialto theater today. It is distinctly one of the better films of the season and provides May Robson, famous star of "Lady for a Day," with one of her best roles since her leap to screen fame in that Capra picture of two years ago.

The new picture is a story about a great manufacturing business and of the shrewd widow who continued it and built it to greater success than ever before her husband's death. It is the story of a worthless family of children and grandchildren and the industrial difficulties that came to America with the depression. It is a story of labor dissatisfaction, of violence and death and a story of the love between a bold leader of the workers and the spoiled young daughter of wealth.

It is, primarily, splendid screen entertainment and the type that everybody will enjoy. There is pathos, tragedy and terrific suspense but through it all there is high human courage, humor and comedy and, like a thread of beauteous silver in the warp, a love story that will warm the cockles of every heart. It is a love story strange and unusual, but one that is carried out with all fidelity to real life and that ends, perhaps, in the orthodox fashion, but thoroughly satisfyingly and logically.

With clever short subjects as appetizers, "Mills of the Gods" is a screen offering that fully maintains the high standards of Rialto entertainment and one that should draw capacity crowds to the box office all week.

"David Copperfield" Held Over at Grand

"David Copperfield," the screen production that brings so perfectly to life the story and characters of the beloved book by Charles Dickens, will stay at Loew's Grand theater for a second week, it was announced Thursday.

So unanimous has been the delighted approval for this picture and so extremely satisfactory have been the daily box office reports that Manager Eddie Melnick thought it best to hold it over for the second week, in order that, in so far as possible, none desiring to enjoy it should be disappointed.

It is doubtful if a story was ever better cast for the screen. The title role is carried by Freddie Bartholomew as the child, and by Frank Lawton as the man, W. C. Fields is "Micawber," Edna Mae Oliver is "Aunt Betsey," Madge Evans is "Agnes," Lionel Barrymore is "Dan Peggotty," Maureen O'Sullivan is "Dora," Madge Evans is "Agnes," Lewis Stone is "Mr. Wickfield," Roland Young is "Uriah Heep," etc.

Hollywood has learned, it is apparent, that it does not pay to take liberties with the classics. At any rate, they never succeeded so well in translating a classic story to the screen as they never cling more closely to plot, dialog and spirit of a story as they do in "David Copperfield."

A new cast feature, "March of Time," will be seen among the added features on this week's program, while the newscast gives scenes in the Flemington courtroom with Bruno Hauptmann undergoing cross-examination by Attorney-General Wilentz.

Colbert in "Gilded Lily" On Fox Screen Today

The glamorous and lissome Claudette Colbert, in her first singing and dancing role since her hit performance in "Borch Garter," is the principal attraction of the gay "The Gilded Lily," which opens today at the Fox theater.

A saucy, audacious and unusual comedy about a pretty girl who wants to be a hard-working wife to a poor man, features two handsome leading men, Fred MacMurray and Ray Milland in support of Miss Colbert.

MacMurray as a reporter and Miss Colbert, as an obscure stenographer, are a pair of goofy but lovable people who celebrate their regular Thursday evening date by sitting on a park bench and munching popcorn as they watch the world go by.

This happy little institution is broken up when Miss Colbert meets a millionaire visiting the United States incognito, and falls head over heels in love with him. She learns the truth about him eventually and MacMurray booms her into a sensation as the girl who jilted a duke. Still in love with Milland, she goes to England as a night club sensation.

But the romance is a failure, as most of them are, except for one thing. It proves to Miss Colbert the newspaper reporter was the man she loved all the time. And, since he had known that all the time, there is no trouble in reuniting them. In the final sequence, we see the blissful pair of adorable idiots ensconced happily on their park bench again.

Interest Cut Order Suspended by FDIC

WASHINGTON, Jan. 31.—(P)—The Deposit Insurance Corporation today suspended indefinitely application of its recent order reducing from 3 to 2 1/2 per cent the maximum interest, which may be charged on time and savings deposits of insured banks which are not members of the federal reserve system.

The original order, issued several months ago, would have become effective tomorrow. When Senator Carter Glass, democrat, Virginia, charged the action was contrary to law, the order was suspended temporarily in the hope of securing adequate legislation before February 1.

The corporation's action was taken to conform with a similar order issued by the federal reserve board with ly represents the war office's views, explaining that further comment would tend only to increase Russo-Japanese feeling.

Reports from Hsinking, capital of Manchoukuo, meanwhile, said the Japanese general headquarters there was determined to eject all Mongols from the area north of the Kalkha river. (A dispatch from Hsinking said the Japanese headquarters announced that its punitive force, after two days of fighting, had ejected all but 20 or 30 Mongols from the area, and hostilities there were considered at an end.)

After capturing Kalkha Miao, big Lamiist temple north-east of Bor Nor, the Japanese and Manchoukuoan cavalry pressed on across frozen wastelands, in 30 below weather, in pursuit of fleeing Mongols, the Hsinking reports said.

The fact that no soviet forces were engaged in the Mongolian action was stressed.

"Bright Eyes" Held Over Second Paramount Week

Due to record-breaking crowds at the Paramount last week to see "Bright Eyes" with Shirley Temple, James Dunn and Atlanta's own Jane Withers, the management has arranged a special holdover program through next Thursday, when its run must come to an end to make room for Will Rogers' newest production, "The County Chairman," starting Friday.

"Bright Eyes" is the newest and best vehicle for the amazing talents of Shirley Temple, child star extraordinary. No such sensational performance as Shirley's, no such dramatic and persuasive film story has been seen on a local screen in recent months. There can be no doubt whatever of the tremendous reception which will be accorded this delightful drama of Christ-time wherever it is shown.

"Bright Eyes" has universal appeal, in every sense of the word. Swift, human, at times pathetic, at times enormously funny, it is a story which will hold you in its spell for opening sequence to smashing finish.

James Dunn is once again cast "opposite" Shirley, Jane Darwell, who registered so emphatically in "The White Parade," contributes splendid work, and other members of a fine cast are Lois Wilson, Judith Allen, Charles Sellen and Dorothy Christy.

Orchid Color Scheme Will Prevail At Weinman-Latimer WeddingBy Sally Forth.*

IT BECOMES the special privilege of Sally Forth today to make the first announcement of the wedding plans of lovely Frances Weinman and William Carroll Latimer. They will plight their troth at 4:30 o'clock on Tuesday afternoon, March 5, at the Church of Our Savior in Cartersville. Canon William S. Turner, who baptized and confirmed the fair bride-elect, will perform the ceremony that transforms titian-haired Frances into Mrs. William Carroll Latimer Jr.

An orchid color scheme will prevail in the wedding details, and white and green will feature the decorations at the quaint little church to which 200 guests will be bidden. A small reception will be given at the Weinman home after the ceremony, and announcement cards will be issued by Mr. and Mrs. William J. Weinman the day after the marriage.

Mary Ann Carr will be maid of honor and Virginia Myrick Weinman will play the role of matron of honor for her sister. The heavy of bridesmaids includes Louisa Robert, Anne Alston, Octavia Riley, Constance Adams and Frances Latimer, the latter being Carroll's sister. Pete Latimer will serve as his brother's best man, and Tom Clarke, Tom Holland, Alton Irby Jr., Andrew Weinman, Leonard Richardson and Tom Willingham, of Rome, will act as groomsmen. A pair of the cutest little four-year-olds, Virginia Myrick Weinman, the bride-elect's niece, and Ray Dellinger, have been chosen to act as train-bearers.

The ushers, Clark Howell, Alex Smith Jr., Ray Dellinger, of Cartersville, and Howard Meincke, of Chicago, will show the guests to their seats, and the beautiful bride, arrayed in ivory satin, orange blossoms, real lace and tulle, will be given in marriage by William J. Weinman, her father. After a trip to Florida, Mr. Latimer and his bride will go to housekeeping in an apartment at Peachtree and Sixth streets.

And here are the parties that will be given for this interesting and popular couple: On St. Valentine's Day, February 14, the bride-elect will be honored at the luncheon at which Mrs. Belle Robinson Leigh will entertain, and on Saturday evening, February 23, Miss Octavia Riley has planned a buffet supper at her home on Habersham road as a complimentary gesture to Miss Weinman and Mr. Latimer. Following supper, the party will attend the dinner-dance at the Piedmont Driving Club.

Miss Mary Ann Carr will be hostess Saturday evening, March 2, at a party at the dinner-dance at the Piedmont Driving Club, honoring the young couple, and the following day, Sunday, March 3, Miss Anne Alston entertains at a buffet supper.

Following the wedding rehearsal Monday evening, March 4, Mr. and Mrs. Andrew Weinman, brother and sister of the bride-elect, and Mr. and Mrs. Ray Dellinger will be hosts at a buffet supper at their home in Cartersville.

ALTHOUGH the eleventh wedding anniversary has no particular significance when it comes to giving presents, Billy and Sarah Huger were kept as busy as bees opening lots of amusing gifts received at the surprise party given them on January 29. Unbeknownst to the celebrants of this auspicious date, Mrs. A. J. Orme, William and Callie Healey and Cornelia and Oliver Healey invited intimate friends to assemble at the Valley road home of Mrs. Orme to attend a buffet supper last Tuesday evening.

Leave it to Mrs. L. G. Daingerfield to introduce the bride note into the observation of the wedding anniversary. She ordered an exact duplicate of the bouquet carried by the former Sarah Huger when she took her marriage vows in the Ponce de Leon Baptist church 11 years ago. And who do you suppose caught the exquisite flowers when Sarah mounted the stairway and tossed it to the group of admirers assembled below? None other than Billy Huger, who saw to it that he stood directly within the line of her vision, so that the bouquet just naturally fell into his outstretched arms.

Clever stunts were presented by talented guests, but honors safely may be conferred upon Oliver Healey, whose splendid impersonation of Maurice Chevalier singing "Louisiana" fairly brought down the house. He croons equally as well as Bing Crosby, whom he imitated in several tuneful selections, accompanied at the piano by Graham Jackson. Sally cannot close this screed without commenting upon the rhythmic tap dance executed by William Healey, who, like the "man on the flying trapeze," exhibited his skillful, graceful steps "with the greatest of ease."

SIGNS of early spring were expressed in the exquisite decorations featuring the luncheon given Thursday by Mrs. Samuel Tupper at the Capital City Club in compliment to her niece, Miss Deas Smith, and Miss Frances Haven, who are counted among Atlanta's most popular debutantes of the current season. Mrs. Tupper's artistic ability was truly displayed in the arrangement of the lovely floral centerpiece gracing the perfectly appointed table.

Sprays of blue delphinium provided a delicate and charming contrast for the lavender and pink sweet peas filling the large blue Wedgwood china bowl. Adding golden color to the flower arrangement and further expressing the springtime motif were jonquils and small yellow daisies. Mounds of similar flowers hand-painted on tiny pale blue cards marked the guests' places.

Invited for this informal affair were a number of sister debbies of the honor guests, including Misses Maude Thompson, Mary Ann Carr, Mary Irby, Adelaide Fleming, Lucia Smith, Betty McDuffie and Laura Troutman.

DOROTHY ANNE and Janet Smith, the 7 and 9-year-old daughters of Mr. and Mrs. De Ford Smith, have ideas of their own about being patriotic. Last year they wanted to have a Roosevelt birthday party, but they were dissuaded of the idea by their mother because they did not start in time.

This year they began in plenty of time. With the result that yesterday afternoon between the hours of 2:30 and 4:30 o'clock they gave a party at their home on Sixth street—a very big party attended by 100 Atlanta children.

Not only was the idea Janet's and Dorothy Anne's very own, but they planned and executed every detail of the decorations, entertainments and refreshments. Of course, the decorative motif featured the patriotic colors. The very entertaining program consisted of a floor show, with the various acts staged by the hostesses' young contemporaries in school and dancing class. There were song and dance hits, acrobatic stunts, tap dances and, comedy acts. Following the program, games were played with prizes awarded to the winners. Red, white and blue candles were served to the young guests.

Today the proceeds of the party will be forwarded to President Roosevelt's Warm Springs Foundation fund, to contribute toward the care of those less fortunate.

Hugh Casey, Young Atlanta Pitcher, Signs Cub Contract

Signs With Cubs

Hugh Casey, the Buckhead boy, has signed with the Chicago Cubs, he announced yesterday. Casey is expected to become a prize rookie with the Cubs, having a chance to stick this year. He was not satisfied with last year's Atlanta manager and his performance was not all that was desired. With congenial surroundings he is expected to develop into a real major league pitcher.

GRIMM TO GIVE RIGHT-HANDER A REAL CHANCE

Ex-Cracker Rookie Showed Much Promise Last Season.

By Jimmy Jones.

Hugh Casey, the young right-hander who showed flashes of real promise with the Crackers last year—enough to persuade scouts for the Chicago Cubs to obtain an option on him—has signed a contract with the National league club and has been promised a good chance by that outfit.

Hugh, who is a resident of Buckhead, revealed this information yesterday. He has been ordered to report to Chicago on February 20, where he will join a squad of Cubs departing for the team's training base at Catalina Island.

"I'm pleased with the chance and also with the letter I got from the club," Casey stated. "Charlie Grimm, the manager, evidently plans to give me a good chance and I hope I can make good."

SIGNED IN '32.

Casey, who first tried out with the Crackers in 1932 and came back to the club last spring after a great year with Charlotte in 1933, was sold to the Cubs on an optional basis late in the season. The Cubs paid $15,000 for a look at him and will pay $5,000 if they keep him.

The Chicago team first held an option on Millard Hayes, another young right-hander belonging to the team, but shifted it to Casey when Hayes injured a shoulder and was placed on the suspended list by Spencer Abbott.

Casey showed great improvement under Eddie Moore toward the latter part of the season and won two games inside of eight days. Both were well pitched and the youngster showed a lot of stuff. Previously, the boy had been a misanthrope with Abbot, which resulted in his being sent home from Chattanooga where the Crackers were playing.

His differences with Spencer were readily patched up and he finished out the season in strong fashion. "I've been doing a lot of hunting in south Georgia, and my legs are in great shape," Casey stated. "I weigh around 180 pounds now and I believe I will put on some more."

MERE YOUNGSTER.

Casey is very young, only 21, in fact, and has a real future. He wound up with eight wins and six losses with the Crackers in his first full season in Class A ball. He undoubtedly would have done much better had he not suffered arm trouble after pitching and winning the Cracker's first victory of the 1934 season—a 5-4 10-inning affair in Nashville on the coldest day of the season.

The boy really looked great in that game, pitching against Nashville's left-handed stars, Weintraub and Richbourg, in the short park. Casey did a brilliant job of fielding in this game, accepting 10 chances without an error, which was only a few short of the record.

If Casey is not retained by the Cubs, or sent to their Coast league farm at Los Angeles, he will come back to the Crackers, which would suit Eddie Moore just fine.

And if Hugh is sent back to a Class A league, he wants to come to Atlanta. "Atlanta is my home and it's a great town, so it wouldn't break my heart if they sent me back, although I want to stick up there if possible," Hugh related.

The young pitcher also put in a big boost for Eddie Moore and Earl Mann, who have replaced Abbot and the late Wilbert Robinson as active members of the Cracker staff.

"I enjoyed pitching for Eddie the

BRITISH RACER REACHES BEACH FOR SPEED RUN

Campbell Ready to 'Shoot Work' for New Speed Record.

By Jack Troy.

DAYTONA BEACH, Jan. 31.—Sir Malcolm Campbell, arriving here early this afternoon with Lady Campbell, daughter Jean and members of his party, is determined to do "the best I can" regarding setting a new world's land-speed record of 200 miles per hour in his rejuvenated Bluebird.

"Oh, I am 65 now," Campbell said in response to a query. "It is the Indies who grow more beautiful with the years. We men age and can do nothing about it." Campbell is actually 49. He laughed when someone suggested that he was 165 years old from the standpoint of super-speed racing experience.

"The car is built for a speed of 300 miles per hour and I hope to get the best out of her. I understand the beach is improving," and even as he spoke he gazed out of the broad windows of his hotel room and watched with satisfaction the heavy breakers crashing and sweeping along the course, impelled by a strong north-east wind.

BLUEBIRD EN ROUTE. The Bluebird is being shipped here and will arrive within a few days. Campbell hopes to make his first run around the 16th, when a full moon brings a heavy tide and smoothes out any rough spots on the 12-mile beach course.

Campbell's present record is 272.108, established here in 1933. He will not be satisfied until he better this mark. Which is to say that he will not be satisfied with any record less than the five-mile-a-minute goal he has set.

Members of Sir Malcolm's party included, besides Lady Campbell and Jean, Major Goldie Gardner, famous British driver; Bill Sturt, his American manager; and Captain Robin Grosvenor, heir to the Duke of Westminster.

SAME MECHANICS. With one exception the same six British mechanics who have accompanied Campbell on his daredevil expeditions of super-speed, will arrive in a couple of days to take charge of the car and service it during the trials.

This is Lady Campbell's second trip to Daytona Beach for the trials. She was here in 1928 when the Captain Campbell made his first runs in this country. He broke the late Major Segraves' record by driving Bluebird 206.559 miles per hour. Segraves had established a mark of 203 in the previous year.

Lady Campbell is here for what is regarded as the supreme test. She declares she would not miss the 300-mile-per-hour attempt. Just as she would not miss the first super-speed attempt of Sir Malcolm. It is a bit significant.

ATHENS, Ga., Jan. 31.—I found Mr. Harry Mehre a-puffing of a cigar in the living room of his home while he waited to go out for spring football practice at Sanford field.

"Do you remember what someone said about the game of golf?" he asked. "Well," said I, "so many things have been said about golf, seriously and profanely."

"This," he said, "was by a man who said, 'Golf is a humbling game.' Well, so is football. In fact, I doubt if golf has a thing on football."

"A coach works all spring and into the fall and tries to rate his team along. And then maybe he has luck or maybe bad fortune. Or accidents. And things go wrong beyond his power to prevent or aid. He has to sit and take it. And all of it isn't pleasant."

"It teaches the coach as much about philosophy and self-control as it does the boys. It's a great game with which to work. It has all the elements of adventure and competition and craftsmanship and all those things, plus the human element. I guess there isn't a game just like it."

All of which is quite true. There isn't a coach in the game who has had any more success in victory than Harry Mehre. And he has been plunged down to the depths. But he bobs right back. His 1934 team finished in style.

I would rate his five victories over Yale, especially the one of 1929, as the equal of any coaching accomplishment in Dixie. And he has plenty of southern victories to add into these scored in the east.

But even those Yale victories contained one laugh. It was after Mehre's Georgia teams had won the second straight from Yale and the second straight from New York University before great New York crowds at the Yankee stadium and at the Yale bowl in New Haven. Mehre came into the New Yorker hotel after the Yale game. His picture had been plastered over the metropolitan papers and the accomplishments of his team had used up several columns of white paper.

In the lobby, as he entered to be slapped on the back by hundreds, he ran into an old schoolmate who had been with him at Notre Dame.

"Well, well, well, Harry Mehre," said the old schoolmate. "Where in the world are you located these days, Harry?" Mr. Mehre was all set to go beat Yale again—all by himself.

COMING TO ATHENS. I recall best, October of 1929. The Yale Pullmans were on a sidetrack at the foot of the hill. And the streets were jammed that morning of October 12.

Mal Stevens, then head coach at Yale, was in one of the hotels and I found him and he asked about the game. Georgia had a raw team of sophomores. I recall telling him he should win by at least two touchdowns. And he nodded. It was his own estimate.

Georgia beat him just 15 to 0. It was the greatest victory ever scored south of the old Smith and Wesson line. With less than a half minute to play I edged up to the bench and took Mehre's arm.

"Congratulations," I said, "it's great." "Please, please," he said, "it isn't over yet. Wait and see. They may start scoring."

And even as he spoke the gun barked and the game was done. He couldn't believe it. He talked of that today. "You know," he said, "I saw those kids of ours stopping them. They kept stopping them. But I could never believe time was going. I kept thinking any minute now this great Yale team would start. And when you shook my arm I was sure there must be 30 minutes left and they would suddenly score three touchdowns and beat us."

THE SANFORD STADIUM. That same day, October 12, 1929, probably was the happiest day Georgia alumni have known. The teams were playing that day in a great concrete stadium—a brand-new one.

Dr. S. V. Sanford had dreamed it and with the aid of his alumni had made the dream into a concrete one of real concrete and steel. And that day they honored him—presenting him with a silver cup while the 30,000 people present roared their approval. He's done a great job for Georgia, has Dr. Sanford.

There was another story about that game. It was sweetly hot. And Yale, quitting her section of the world for the

GOLF FACTS NOT THEORIES

By ALEX. J. MORRISON

A golfer recently told me that he thought lessons in the fall of the year a complete waste of time. He figured that whatever he learned now would be forgotten by the time he went out in the spring.

His argument was sound in view of past experiences. In all the lessons he had taken he missed one very important part of the swing—correct hip action.

I pointed out that any time spent on acquiring the proper hip action would not be lost, because once this part of the swing is learned it is never lost.

All of the professionals' swings show a close approximation to correct hip action. They may have to work on changes in other parts of their swings from time to time, but I've never known one of them having to learn hip action over again.

Schmeling-Hamas Guarantee Is Paid

NEW YORK, Jan. 31.—(AP)—Fred Kirsch, co-promoter with Walter Rothenberg of the proposed Max Schmeling-Stevie Hannan heavyweight fight in Hamburg, Germany, March 10, today received a cable from Rothenberg saying, the $25,000 guarantee demanded by Hannan had been deposited in the Chase National bank in Paris.

Deposit of the money insures the fight, barring accident, as both men

MEHRE SEEKS TWO CHANGES IN GRID RULES

Georgia Coach Departs for New York and Coaches' Meeting.

By Ralph McGill.

ATHENS, Ga., Jan. 31.—Harry Mehre checked out of Athens tonight following his spring football practice and headed for New York in one of the New York trains.

He will attend the national rules committee and coaches' meeting in New York, returning to Athens on Monday.

The Georgia coach favors a couple of changes in the rules. He wants the penalty changed for a foul while the ball is in the air. At present the ball goes to the offended team at the point of the foul and the penalty may easily be too drastic for a minor foul.

Mehre feels this should be changed to a set penalty of say 15 or even 25 yards.

LATERAL PASS.

Mehre also wishes to have the rule changed on the lateral pass so that in the event of a successful lateral and an accidental second forward which goes incomplete, the original gain will not be lost.

Georgia's squad looked tight but fast here this afternoon. It is much too early to predict just what sort of a football team Mehre will have. But it will be a fast one and it will pass well.

Mehre always has a versatile attack and this one of 1935 should not be different. But Georgia has the same old trouble. The big guards and the big tackles, weighing 230 or 220 pounds with speed and ability, simply are not there. Georgia alumni need look for no championship team. The material for a title winner isn't there.

MATERIAL GOOD.

But the material is there for a team which will outspeed and outpace most of its opponents. Georgia has a chance, with some breaks in the luck, to be one of the 1935 leaders.

The most impressive player on the field is Maurice Green, the big full-back. He is kicking better than ever and this year he should be blocking well, something he hadn't learned to do last fall as a sophomore.

Georgia plans a big day on Washington's birthday, which I believe is on February 22. The team will play a complete game that day as part of the celebration.

are in training. Schmeling in Germany and Hannan in New York city.

Baer, Hoffman 'Afraid' of N. Y.

MIAMI, Fla., Jan. 31.—(AP)—Max Baer and his manager, Anell Hoffman, are "actually afraid" to have Max defend his heavyweight title in New York city "under present rules and regulations of the state boxing commission," Hoffman said tonight.

The champ, his manager and his brother, Buddy, were packing for a trip to Fair Oaks, Cal., following exhibitions here. "Not that I blame the commissioners," Hoffman added. "They must abide by the rules, though they admit the rules are all wrong and are trying to correct them."

He was quick to second an opinion expressed by Colonel John Kilpatrick, president and general manager of Madison Square Garden, that Jack Dempsey's influence on the box office and the business of fighting in general is still important.

WOOD TO MAKE J. P. C. DEFEATS RECORD ATTEMPT DAVIDSON, 31-29

MIAMI, Fla., Jan. 31.—(AP)—Gar Wood, "the old gray fox" of speedboat racing, announced today he will try to set a new world speed record at Miami Beach the first week in March, wind and water permitting.

Miss America X, in which he set the present record of 124.55 miles an hour in St. Clair river, Mich., two summers ago, is being primed here now, he said, and will be shipped here next month.

Wood said he will make a trial in Indian creek, but if he finds he cannot get up enough speed there before entering the measured mile, he may try again in the government channel paralleling the county causeway across Biscayne bay.

By FRANK MACMILLAN.

NEW YORK, Jan. 31.—(AP)—

Traders in stocks and commodities again today appeared to take a little more interest in the constructive side of the markets, but the continuing undermine of caution was still apparent in the curtailed volume of transactions.

Most stocks pushed ahead in a rather genuinely fair and generally fair

ending in the last half of the day.

A moderate increase in bond offerings

at the close caused a mildly irregular ending in the last half of the day.

Secondary

issues, some of which had shown fair gains, ended a little lower on the average. United States government obligations were a bit soft.

Commodities were steady to a shade improved. Wheat lifted 1-8 to 3-4 of a cent and cotton was steady at 10 cents a bale lower to 5 cents higher.

Gold currencies rallied mildly against the dollar.

Aviation Shares.

Aviation shares found a following in early dealings as traders hoped for an awaited publication of the federal aviation commission's year-long study of the industry. When it finally appeared in the late afternoon, accompanied by President Roosevelt's remark that the profit motive in commercial aviation should be a "secondary consideration," most of the earlier enthusiasm

waned.

Gains of fractions to around a point

or so in some of the aircraft issues were cancelled and most closed about unchanged on the day. Steels made a fair showing as the market digested the prediction of a trade publication that the rise in operations might be extended a further 10 per cent before a leveling of the net in the year.

Nibbling at the preferred list continued. Some senior issues able to set up 1 to 2 points included American Woolen, Chicago Pneumatic Tool,

Republic Steel certificates, Wheeling

Steel, National Supply and New York

Stock Trading Is Dull.

Stock trading for the session aggregated $24,930 shares and the associated price average for 60 issues advanced .34 of a point to 28.81.

Transactions for the month of January totaled 19,414,000 shares, compared with 25,500,000 in December and 54,565,000 in January, 1934.

No special repercussions of the publication for the first time of the full list of stockholders of officers and directors in their corporations as required by the securities act appeared in the market.

Bethlehem steel dipped into the black ink bottle in 1935, as its report was $550,511 compared with a net loss of $8,755,725 in the previous year.

Most of the year's losses were earned in the final quarter when operations were at 34.9 per cent of capacity.

YAGOL NOT ON FACULTY OF EMORY U., SAYS COX

Nathan Yagol is a graduate student at Emory University but is not a member of the university faculty, Dr. Cox added.

Harvey W. Cox, president of Emory, said Thursday in commenting on Yagol's election from the Oglethorpe University campus, where the Emory student was accused of being a "communist."

A headline in The Constitution Thursday morning referred to Yagol as an "Emory teacher." Yagol holds a scholarship at Emory, President Cox explained, but performs only manual labor in return for the scholarship.

Dr. Cox added that Yagol's exoneration by the DeKalb county grand jury should be sufficient refutation of the charge that the Yagol is a "communist."

The Atlanta League of Women Voters Thursday stated that the league never takes issues against persons but that they stand only for principles.

The league Wednesday passed resolutions supporting the right of the free press, free speech and free assembly. The resolution follows:

Whereas, we as American citizens are guaranteed under the constitution of the United States, the right of the free press, free speech and free assembly, and—

Whereas, so recently as last October, four men and women, residents of Fulton and DeKalb counties, meeting in a private home for the promotion of peace, were seized by police and thrown into jail, for a space of two weeks, later being released by the DeKalb county grand jury for lack of incriminating evidence, and—

Whereas, any minority group in our midst stands in the same danger of oppressive treatment as the group just cited, the Atlanta League of Women Voters hereby offers this resolution of protest against such unwarranted and tyrannous action on the part of constituted authority and goes on record as standing for the uncompromising support of the people's civil rights as guaranteed under the constitution, and as being in unwavering opposition to interference with these rights.

EDWARD M. FLODING FUNERAL RITES TODAY

Edward McGregory Flooding, 55, well-known Atlanta salesman, died Thursday after a short illness. He resided at a downtown hotel.

Surviving are his wife, a daughter, Mrs. W. T. Webb; two sisters, Mrs. Eva Ward and Mrs. Katherine Barclay; of Atlanta; and three brothers, J. A. Flooding, of Atlanta; Robert Owen Flooding, of Charleston, W. Va.; and P. T. Flooding, of Los Angeles.

Rites will be held at 4 o'clock this afternoon at the chapel of Harry G. Poole and the body will be taken to Huntington, W. Va., for interment.

Spain Shuts Frontier To French Goods

MADRID, Jan. 31.—(AP)—Ministerial sources said tonight the Spanish government had closed the frontier to French products at 6 p. m. today at which time the Franco-Spanish commercial treaty expired.

A conference between representatives of the two countries scheduled to take place at 10 p. m. tomorrow, however, may result in reopening of the frontier.

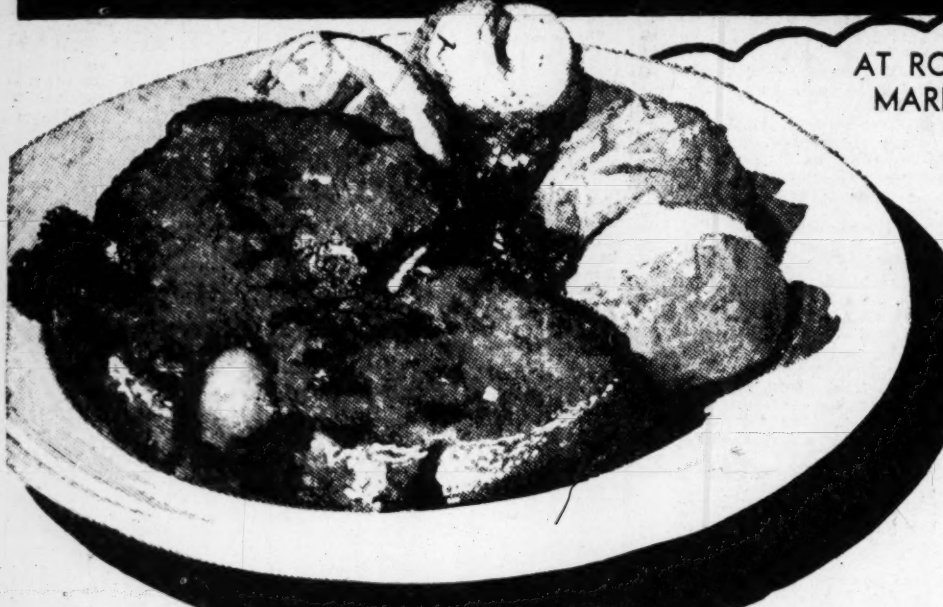

The treaty, drafted last March, has not been renewed because Spain thus far has refused to accede to France's demand that her preference discount of 35 per cent on French automobiles be increased to 50 per cent.
